President's Power over Dollar Back in Money Bill

Silver Clause Also Changed By Conferees

Conference Report Must Now Go to Both Houses for Final Vote with Result in Doubt

Now Is Without Prohibition on Purchases of Foreign Silver; Vote Due Today

Washington, June 29 (AP)—The President's power to devalue the dollar went back into the administration monetary bill tonight under circumstances which still left the fate of that bill uncertain.

Taken from the measure by a group of hard-money Republicans in the East and Silver Democrats in the West, the bill was restored after the intense protests of both factions—the might of superior administration voting strength on a Senate conference committee.

In addition, the administration removed from the bill a provision on future purchases of foreign silver and reduced from 77.5 to 70 cents the price of dollar silver written into the bill by the same East-West coalition.

Final Vote Soon

The conference report now will go to both Houses for ratification. The measure must be passed by both Houses tomorrow, or the $2,000,000,000 exchange stabilization fund devaluation powers both of which are continued by the measure, it now stands, will die automatically.

Subsequently the groups affected, and by the new development as well as by a verbal drubbing administered to them on Tuesday by President Roosevelt were in an excellent position to filibuster the measure to death. Some legislators said the situation though that it be done.

The conferees' decision, however, the effect of giving the silver clause of the coalition an increase of 10 cents in the silver price, as agreed with the 64.64 cents the dollar is now paying, and of giving the Republican end of the bill voting dead completely out of the cold.

Future in Doubt

It raised the question at once whether the coalition would now be together or be split apart by the top thrown to the silverites.

Craig, Retiring, Recommends New Arms Divisions

Wants Five Hard-Hitting Units Prepared for Defense

Washington, June 29 (AP)—On the eve of his retirement as the army's chief of staff, General Malin Craig recommended today that five "small, seasoned, hard-hitting" army divisions be created to strike with lightning rapidity against any enemy attacking the western hemisphere.

They would be infantry artillery divisions, and would be available for instant dispatch to seize or hold naval and air bases and to destroy enemy bases.

Four partial divisions are available now for such purposes. To expand them to full peace time strength and create a fifth he recommended that 1,800 officers and 22,000 men be added to the army. These would be over and beyond the army expansion program already under way.

Part of Defense Plan

The recommendations were part of an "economical, properly balanced" defense plan which General Craig submitted to Secretary Woodring at the close of nearly four years as professional head of the army.

Nearing the retirement age of 64.

Defense Attacks Government Case Against Buckner

New York, June 29 (AP)—The arguments case against five men accused of conspiring to rig the market in defaulted Philippine railroad bonds was attacked today by attorney Irving Spier in the first of a series of defense arguments to the jury as involving "a lot of ballyhoo."

Summing up for C. W. Turner, a lawyer, Spier referred sarcastically to the fact that the prosecution had the testimony of chorus girls in the movie stars.

"I never saw such an array!" he said.

"Who lost money in the alleged conspiracy?" he shouted. "Who manipulated the market? This is a first mail fraud case I know where the government hasn't put a single bondholder on the stand to lose any money."

The defendants—William P. Buckner, Jr., Turner, William J. Gillespie, Jr., John Stuart Hyde, former British army officer, and Juan Buencamino, a member of the Philippine legislature—are accused of having schemed to buy bonds in a low market and then to profit by spreading rumors that the securities would be redeemed.

All of them rested their cases during the day.

Sen. Holt Flays Proposal To Fix WPA Cost Limit

"Means Nothing" He Says Of Plan To Make It Four Per Cent

POINTS TO EXPENSES IN WEST VIRGINIA

Administrative Expense Is Falsely Charged, He Tells Senate

Washington, June 29 (AP)—Senator Holt (D-WV) told the Senate a proposed administration cost limit of four per cent of total Works Progress Administration appropriations "means nothing."

The West Virginia critic of the WPA cited his own state in arguments on the floor, saying:

"WPA claims that the administrative expense in my state amounted only to something over $900,000 but the payrolls when checked show that it amounted to $3,300,000."

"WPA determined what would be administrative expense and what would not be administrative expense."

"In one county in our state they said there were only 104 administrative employees, but the payroll check shows 160 who earned more than $1,000 as project bosses."

"They just said what was administration and what was not administration. And if they can hide two and one half million dollars overhead in the little state of West Virginia, what can they hide throughout the United States?"

Asked by Senator Schwellenbach (D-Wash) if he believed foremen on WPA jobs should be charged to administrative expense, Holt replied:

"I do, because a foreman is not a relief worker. I found one superintendent in West Virginia on the payroll at $275 a month, charged to relief labor, nonsecurity. I found over 100 different individuals in the state of West Virginia, each and every one of them making between $200 and $275 a month, charged to relief labor instead of administration."

He advocated that instead of a flat limit of four per cent for administrative costs, the WPA appropriation bill should provide a limit of four per cent "which shall include all noncertified individuals receiving more than a nonsecurity wage."

Secret Committee Probes Negro School

Baltimore, June 29 (AP)—Governor Herbert R. O'Connor disclosed tonight that a "secret" committee is investigating the affairs of the Cheltenham School for Negroes, the management of which was criticized at the last session of the legislature.

The governor said he would not divulge the names of the investigators, believing this would hamper their study.

Findings of the committee, he indicated, will be considered when appointments to the reform school's board are made this year. Five vacancies will be filled during the next few months.

Jones Hits Government Insurance Of Bank Loans To Small Business

Washington, June 29 (AP)—Jesse H. Jones, top-ranking government lender, bluntly told senators today, that government insurance of bank loans to business would not prime the pumps of business and industry.

At the same time, the chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and newly appointed director of federal lending said "we will administer the law to the best of our ability" if Congress decides on a program of insured loans for small and medium sized businesses.

Jones testified before the Senate Banking Committee on the bill by Senator Mead (D-NY) which would authorize the RFC to insure 90 per cent of bank loans to business.

He asserted that the bill, rather than channelling billions of dollars of now idle funds into business and industry as its proponents assert, would actually "tighten up capital because banks won't take the first 10 per cent of losses."

Although the government would insure 90 percent of loans under the Mead bill, banks would have to stand the first 10 percent of any loss.

Jones reviewed the billions of dollars of past government lending to business and industry through the RFC and Federal Reserve banks. This experience, he said, indicated "there has been no great demand for working capital by business and industry that has not been met."

Mead interjected a remark that his office was filled with complaints from little business men that they could not get loans.

"In order to get a loan from a bank a little business man must first prove he does not need it," Mead said. "He must appeal to an unfriendly credit market."

"I don't think it's an unfriendly credit market at all," Jones said. "We tell him he can have a loan now, if he'll come and ask for it. We administer the law pretty liberally. You don't watch us very close."

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Taft, Jr. leave St. James Episcopal Church, New York, following their marriage. He is the son of Senator and Mrs. Robert Taft of Ohio. Hamilton Charges Roosevelt Seeks To Lead U. S. into State Socialism

Republican Chairman Flays New Lending-Spending Program

Washington, June 29 (AP)—John Hamilton, chairman of the Republican national committee, accused the Roosevelt administration tonight of intending to lead the nation into state socialism through its newly proposed lending program.

President Roosevelt's idea for huge government loans as part of a permanent policy Hamilton said in an address prepared for radio delivery, was "conceived in deceit and brought forward with cunning."

Means Government Ownership

Hamilton contended that such a permanent program of loans eventually would bring government ownership of virtually all production.

To support this argument, he quoted from the testimony before the monopoly investigating committee of an administration aide, Assistant Secretary of State A. A. Berle.

"If the government undertakes to create wealth by using its own credit at the rate of four billions or so a year and if its work is well done, the government will be acquiring productive mechanisms at the rate of four billions worth a year or thereabouts," Hamilton quoted Berle.

"Over a period of years, the government will gradually come to own most of the productive plants in the United States."

Opinion of New Dealer

"There," Hamilton commented, "you have an honest analysis of this New Deal plan by an outstanding and influential New Dealer."

The lending program Hamilton asserted, was "the slickest thing the New Deal has ever attempted to put over."

"Stripped of all its sugar-coating and plausible sophistry," he said, "it stands revealed as an unconscionable attempt to buy the 1940 election by sacrificing our American heritage of individual initiative and free enterprise, our historic system of free economy, for an alien state capitalism which, of course, is what is meant by national Socialism, x x x."

No War, Ford Says In an Interview

Detroit, June 29 (AP)—Henry Ford still is convinced the present world turmoil will not be climaxed by war.

He said so today in an interview before publicly introducing his mechanized farming unit which he described as an "instrument for peace that will revolutionize agriculture."

Of war, Ford said today: "Nobody ever got anything through vengeance. There will be no war because none of the nations of the world really want it and too many people know war is unnecessary. Certainly, the laboring people do not want it. The only people who really want war are the international financiers. They know no other way of making money, and even now are endeavoring to profit by promoting war scares."

Asked his personal objective in manufacturing the new mechanized farm unit on a volume basis, Ford said:

"I am convinced that a return to the land means peace and prosperity."

"I want to put prosperity into the country in such a way that it never can be destroyed."

The Ford tractor presented today is a four-wheeled vehicle, the two rear wheels being a hydraulic "lift" that keeps the plow at a constant level and incorporates a system that shifts weight in such manner that it cannot be upended.

Power Commission Approves Sales

Washington, June 29 (AP)—The Federal Power Commission approved today the sale of Tennessee Electric Power Company and Southern Tennessee Electric Power Company properties to the Tennessee Valley Authority and 36 municipalities and public power cooperatives.

The sale price was fixed at $87,600,000. The EPC specified all negotiations be completed as of December 31, 1939.

Officials said the sale and purchase was contingent upon congressional action to permit the TVA to raise funds to finance its share of the purchase price. So far the House and Senate have been unable to agree on the form of such authorizing legislation.

Arms Embargo Is Incorporated in Neutrality Bill

House Votes against Roosevelt's Plan 159 to 157

REPUBLICANS SUPPORT COMPROMISE MEASURE

Allen's Move To Kill All Neutrality Legislation Is Turned Down

Washington, June 29 (AP)—After a session lasting nearly 13 hours the House just before midnight tonight postponed until tomorrow a final vote on the neutrality revision bill, to which an arms embargo provision had been tentatively added.

Washington, June 29 (AP)—The House, in an upset of administration plans, voted tentatively tonight to include a "compromise" arms embargo in the administration neutrality bill.

The teller vote on the embargo amendment was announced as 159 to 157.

The embargo provision is contrary to the wishes of President Roosevelt and the state department who wants the chief executive to have a free hand in handling international situations.

Offered by Representative Vorys (R-Ohio), the proposal differs from present law in that it excludes from the embargo "any arms, implements of war, whatever that means."

Prevents Arms Shipments

It would prevent shipment to belligerents of "arms and ammunition." Rep. Fish (R-NY), ranking minority member of the foreign affairs committee, who has advocated throughout the debate continuation of the present embargo, accepted the Vorys plan.

Calling it "a compromise," Fish asked for and received support from both Democratic and Republican ranks.

He said specifically it would exempt from the embargo everything "except lethal weapons. He mentioned, as excepted, oil, trucks and aircraft."

Slayer of Daughter Is Declared Insane

Washington, Pa., June 29 (AP)—A sanity commission reported today that Clair Young, accused of killing his baby daughter as a "sacrifice" was afflicted with homicidal and suicidal tendencies and recommended his commitment to a hospital for criminally insane.

The 35-year-old Charlestown miner and part time evangelist, who was once an inmate of Torrance state mental hospital, had been in a strait jacket most of the time since the baby, 18-months-old Ada, was shot June 19.

State Motor Patrolman J. C. Conway said Young told him:

"I felt I had to sacrifice in the eyes of the Lord in order that I may go to Heaven."

Senate and House Leaders Hope To Pass Relief Bill Late Today

Washington, June 29 (AP)—Negotiations for the Senate and House reached an agreement tonight on a bill carrying some $1,700,000,000 for relief for the fiscal year starting Saturday, but declined to divulge any of its details immediately.

Washington, June 29 (AP)—Negotiations for the Senate and House, racing against the clock, strove today to iron out troublesome differences between the two chambers over the 1939-40 relief appropriation.

Leaders in both houses forecast that an agreement would be reached in time to prevent a suspension of relief activities with the expiration of current funds Friday night. If the joint committee is successful in working out a compromise, it must be approved by both houses and signed by President Roosevelt before it becomes a law.

Members of the conference committee conceded that some points of difference would prove highly con-

Ray Olson Slain By Deputies As He Leaves Farm

Slayer of Two Men Shot Down after Long Chase

Cable, Wis., June 29 (AP)—Bullets from veteran woodsmen's hard-shooting deer rifles killed Ray Olson today as the slayer of two deputy sheriffs made a last mad attempt to escape from possumen who for two weeks had followed him through the wilds of Northern Wisconsin.

As he lay dying, Olson confessed killing the deputies and gasped a denial that he was given aid during his spectacular flight.

Today's shooting was in sharp contrast to the gunfight which precipitated the manhunt. Surrounded in Indian John Blue Sky's shack two weeks ago, the deadshot Olson barricaded himself and with a single barreled shotgun picked off deputies Carl Johnson and Fred Scott of Hayward when they rushed the door. Re-loading furiously, he exchanged shots with others in the party until they had exhausted their ammunition, then broke for the woods.

No Shooting At End

Although Olson carried the pistol he took from Johnson's body, he fell today without firing a shot. The woodsmen pressed him so closely he

France Assures Poland of Automatic Military Assistance in the Event of Aggression

England Again Warns Germany She Will Use Force If the Reich Seizes the Free City

Paris, June 29 (AP)—French diplomatic quarters heard reports tonight that 600,000 reservists had been called to duty in Germany and it was reliably reported France had assured Poland of automatic military assistance in event of aggression.

French agents were said to have reported to Paris that "men and officers of the German army" as well as Nazi party formations were secretly moving into Danzig, the free city on the Baltic which Germans declare will "return home to the Reich" and which Polish spokesmen say is part of "the sun and air of our existence."

Some of the reservists called up, these reports said, were being used to fill the places of those sent to Danzig.

Contraband Shipped

The same reports said there also were many shipments of "contraband" arms across the border from East Prussia into Danzig.

These reports did not indicate the places in Germany, however, where the reservists were gathering and foreign diplomatic experts were of the opinion that while the situation might be working toward a crisis it was not yet critical.

(Officials in Berlin and Danzig have issued several denials of reports from Paris, London and Warsaw that trained Germans in mufti were gathering in Danzig to strengthen the forces there.)

Held Long Conference

These reports were said to have resulted, however, in a long conference of Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet with Julius Lukasiewicz, the Polish ambassador, at which assurance was given that Britain and France would fulfill their mutual assistance pledges to Poland automatically.

Jap Spokesman Sees No Sense In Conference

Tientsin, June 29 (AP)—A Japanese spokesman told a gathering of his compatriots here today that "nothing could be more foolhardy than to expect much" from the Tokyo negotiations in which Britain and Japan have agreed to seek a solution of their Tientsin crisis.

The spokesman said that any relaxation of Japan's attitude here—where the army has blockaded the British and French concessions since June 14—"would only play into British hands." "There may be occasion for us to tighten the isolation of the local British concession and in such event our determination remains strong," he said.

The spokesman reflected the attitude of the army in North China, which the Tokyo government in some degree overruled in agreeing to the Tokyo conference, removed from the bitterness of the Tientsin atmosphere.

Restrictions on the blockaded concessions remained relaxed, considerable food supplies were received, market prices dropped and even Britons were given only cursory examinations at the Japanese barriers.

It was learned that the Japanese were planning a huge anti-British demonstration here July 7, second anniversary of the outbreak of the Japanese-Chinese war. Japanese said some 70,000 Chinese would demonstrate in the native city.

Many Home Decoration Tricks
Can Be Turned with Mirrors

This make-up mirror is placed properly—so that the light will fall directly on the face of the person who'll use it rather than on the mirror.

By JOAN DURHAM
AP Feature Service Writer

If you want to brighten the corner where you are with mirrors, you had best make a careful survey of your problem and go about solving it intelligently.

Here are some ideas to help you: Mirrors for make-up purposes should be placed so that a strong light falls on your face, directly in front of, or at the side of a window. Not very flattering, maybe, but it certainly gives you the gift to see yourself as others will see you.

If you can't make use of a window for this purpose you may use light tubes with reflectors on both sides of the mirror. These lights should direct the light away from the mirror and toward you.

If, on the other hand, your primary purpose is to flatter the guests who enter your powder room you may:

Have side lights on you mirror that have either tubes or bulbs of frosted glass.

Place the mirror so when you look into it the light falls over your shoulders from behind—casting some shadows on your face and lighting the mirror rather than your face.

Minimum requirements for a good plate glass door-mirror intended for dressing purposes are about 20 inches in width and 50 inches in height.

To place decorative mirrors to particularly good advantage in small rooms:

Hang them so they'll pick up reflections through the door of an adjoining room or so they'll pick up an outdoor scene—a garden or a glimpse of the street.

It is possible to seemingly double the size of very small rooms by panelling one whole wall with a mirror.

The Cause of the Pitkin Movement

WHILE one may not be particularly attracted by the name of the movement — The Next American Revolution—one can nevertheless appreciate the motive underlying the proposed organization which Prof. Walter B. Pitkin, of the Columbia university school of journalism, is attempting to launch. The name smacks a bit of the nomenclature used by our radical intelligentsia, parlor pinks, soap-boxers and those who want a different system of government here.

But, of course, Pitkin does not want that sort of thing. At least, we hope not. His proposal is to organize the great middle class into a non-political, non-sectarian and non-commercial group for the purpose of arousing that class to action in political and economic affairs, and to correct evils through focused public opinion.

There is no reason why this class should not get together for organized action. About every other class in the country is organized but the great middle classes, which are usually made the beast of burden for all the others, is for the most part inarticulate and inoperative.

In pondering the cause of this movement, one need not go far to find an underlying motivating reason. It is undoubtedly grounded upon the unrest resulting from excessive governmental burdens resting upon this great class—the onerous taxation, the gradual encroachment of rights and privileges supposedly guaranteed by organic laws, the increasing interference of government with private business, the restrictive policies that militate against the successful operation of the profit system, the gradual destruction of local self-government and, above all, the fear and uncertainty of what these and correlated things may produce in the American body politic.

It may be that it is high time for such an organization. One, perhaps, cannot honestly tell. Prof. Pitkin doesn't know whether it will take and become a useful instrumentality in protecting a great class on whose welfare the nation so largely depends. But he has the courage of his convictions, for which he deserves credit, and considering what has been done with our government, with our economics and in the general field of class organization it may be that it will not "die a bornin'."

It is a sad commentary on American institutions, traditions and ideals, however, that such a movement should seriously be deemed necessary.

Old and Hoary

THE EXTENT to which the Head New Dealer feels himself slipping as Congress administers one well directed kick after another and the third term "movement" languishes in the throes of death, is best illustrated by Mr. Roosevelt's lament when the Senate voted overwhelmingly to strip him of the power to play with the value of the dollar.

The Senate's action, said Mr. Roosevelt, would "return" the power over money to "Wall Street." Aside from the fact that all demagogues, particularly when they feel themselves slipping, blame "Wall Street," what are the facts in the case? The Senate action, if upheld by the House, will return control over money to Congress, where it belongs and where it rested until Mr. Roosevelt evolved the scheme to have Congress hand this power to him.

"Wall Street" never possessed the power to trifle with the value of money in any manner. Mr. Roosevelt disavows any intention to further devalue the dollar, now worth fifty-nine cents due to devaluation under his administration, but thinks he should have the power to do so any time the whim seizes him. Real Americans think not. They do not think Mr. Roosevelt should have any power that rightfully and constitutionally belongs to Congress, or to the courts, for that matter. In fact, many of them do not think he should have any power. They fervently long for the day when he is retired permanently to his mother's home.

Sour Soothing Syrup

IN THE COURSE of one of its innumerable apologies for the New Deal, which it has been running ad seriatum for several years, the Fairmont, W. Va., Times critically endeavors to square a remark by its governor, Homer A. Holt, who rightly urged a "pay-as-you-go" plan in speaking at the governors' conference at Albany.

"Because the federal government has considered human needs above ability to 'pay-as-you-go,'" it observes, "the state of West Virginia and the other states of the nation have been able to keep their budgets in balance. We wonder just what West Virginia would have to show today in the way of needed public construction had it not been for the liberality of a federal government that has not been able to place its budget in balance. And where would our unemployed and unemployables be today if they had to depend on the wholly inadequate relief funds that have been made available for the state?"

Well, if it hadn't been for the gross liberality of a central government with its shameful mismanagement, its mountain debt piling, its hamstringing of business, its outlandish tax oppression and its senseless squander, you would in all probability be much better off. Were it not for these handicaps, your factories and mines would now be humming at full blast as in other years, your unemployment would be at an easily handled minimum and your farmers would not be standing around sheepishly with hats in hand. Were it not for the obstacles named and many others resulting from the misnamed New Deal, you would have got along pretty well, indeed; and more's the pity that you haven't.

You would have balanced your state budget in fact, too, for you hard-headed, provident, sturdy West Virginians would have seen to that. And as for your public construction, one would think from the soothing syrup you now spill that a state which could easily raise and spend two or three hundred million dollars without the bat of an eye for a splendid highway system, had never had anything before FDR came along and began to mess up things.

Surely the Times cannot insinuate that West Virginia never considered "human needs" before the New Deal happened along. Its history shows that it cared for its people rather well; and in other days it never clothed human needs with public money vote purchasing.

The Right Idea

REPRESENTATIVE MARTIN, of Massachusetts, has the right idea. He proposes, in the interest of federal economy, that Congress impose a flat ten per cent cut on all departmental budgets, exclusive of old age pensions, relief, veterans benefits, interest on the national debt and other comparable fixed charges. He estimates that $500,000,000 could be immediately saved in this way.

Now, Martin concedes that $500,000,000 is not a large sum, especially when judged in relation to current federal expenditures. But he points out that the proposed congressional move would hearten business men, industrialists and farmers by offering positive proof that the government is not wholly indifferent to the need for an effective curb on present spending policies at Washington.

What is particularly good about the Martin plan is that detailed application of the slash would be left to each department executive. It could take the form of salary reductions, curtailed services or any other retrenchment policy, and the Massachusetts representative is convinced that no fundamentally necessary branch of government activity would suffer seriously.

Ordinary budget procedure is usually ineffective as an economy method because department heads are asked what they want or think they need, whereas they should be told what they can have in the light of estimated revenues.

Congress could promptly win the confidence of all taxpayers and business men if it were to give a demonstration of honest regard for prevailing economic conditions in public and private affairs. Representative Martin has found an excellent way to gain the objective. His idea will be adopted unless legislation with a heart and a conscience is a thing of the past.

More and More

THE FEDERAL INTERNAL REVENUE DEPARTMENT plans to collect back federal income taxes from all Maryland state employees whose past salaries have contained funds contributed by the federal government, according to a dispatch from Baltimore.

Under a law recently enacted by Congress, the federal government now can tax the current salaries of state employees and the state government can assess the salaries of federal employees.

Whatever opinion one may have of any ex post facto tax gathering, which is easily guessed, this course is a grim reminder that so long as the senseless squander continues in Washington just so long will the long, strong arm of the federal government reach more and more into the pockets of the people.

The disconcerting thought of the whole oppressive taxing pressure is that, as a comedian flippantly says, we "ain't seen nothin' yet."

Michigan's repudiated sit-down governor, Holy Frank Murphy, who is now Roosevelt's attorney general, told a Madison, Wisconsin, crowd of relievers and payrollers that the LaFollettes are "the best political stock in the nation." Is this demonstrating gratitude to Roosevelt?

Wealth doesn't mean everything. Proof? Well, who were the world's wealthiest men during the lifetimes of William Shakespeare, Michelangelo and Christopher Columbus? Neither do we.

Poor words of cheer for the New Deal come out of Washington. If he runs again, Mr. Roosevelt will have the solid support of Harold Ickes.

Reactions to Murriner Eccles's plea for further pump-priming are now complete. All hands appear to be in favor, except the pump.

They Say Life's an Onion

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I've been told that life is just an onion, with many layers, layer around layer, with nothing at the heart of it.

Infancy is a layer, gurgling, smiling, careless infancy. . . . And after infancy comes childhood, stumbling, learning, most appealing childhood. . . .

And then youth, that yearns and struggles and fights with itself and with environment, and is so beautiful, and is such a tangle and such a puzzle and such a mixture of the dream and the fact. . . . These three are merely layers of the Onion Called Life.

Every day is a thin onion peeling and every month but a thicker one, and a year is only the peeling of the onion, too. . . . So they say.

And all that happens to a man, his joy, his pain, his work, his love, his peace, his battles, his struggle, his defeats, his conquests—they are all but the peeling of the onion. . . . And the more a man knows, the longer he lives, the closer he comes to the empty heart of the onion, to the nothingness at the heart of life. . . . Or so I have heard.

Also I remember reading in a book by Somerset Maugham, "Of Human Bondage." A man in this book tells quietly of his life and the thoughts he used to have and the dreams he followed, and the obstacles he encountered and all his wonderings about the meaning of life. . . . Until he arrived at last at a conclusion which for him meant a sort of peace. His decision then was, after all his pursuit of a meaning in life—that it had no meaning. . . . It was only an onion, you might say, with nothing at its center.

But if you peel an onion you do find something more than an emptiness at its center. You find a bud that can be peeled no further. And if you put an onion in the dark earth or even let it lie in your cupboard, out of that center will come green sprouts and you will see that there is more in that vegetable than nothingness.

You will find a precious recreating substance that quietly defies your analysis and your pessimism. You will find hope there, and you will find the future delicately, firmly, implanted in the present.

And when you take life apart you find something more than pessimism at its heart. You find a belief that defies all grief and all defeat. . . . You find a small, steady, comforting flame. . . . This I believe,

The Human Side Of the News

By EDWIN C. HILL

Radio didn't crash the press gallery at the national capitol, but it obtained separate and equal accommodations with the press under the big top. The privilege finally obtained was in line with a century of similar experience.

Access to news and liberty to distribute it, while written into the constitution, was not come by easily in this country. There was plenty of attempted censorship in the early days of Washington news coverage, much intrusion by lobbyists and schemers, much overt and subtle interference by the government and by powerful interests.

But, in a process of both evolving and fighting over a period of more than 100 years, the main news front of America is safeguarded in a quasi-legal system as institutional as the unwritten British constitution. The system is unique among the governments of the world. The new air reporter is now the heir to the gleanings of mere ground reporters who insisted on their rights. America isn't such a young country after all. Its democracy has deep roots—or, to change the figure, sufficient momentum to carry it through change and adaptation, even such amazing change as talking news instead of writing it.

Granted Long Ago

It was in the Twenty-Fifth Congress, in 1838, that the Senate first granted floor privileges to newspapermen. Up to that time, reporters had lurked around corridors, button-holing congressmen, gleaned what they could from the Congressional Record, gum-shoeing around the outskirts of the legislative mill, in the dark of the moon, trying desperately to keep the people of the young republic informed about what their statesmen were doing. The above concession by the Senate was at first only for Washington correspondents, but later in the year was granted to out-of-town correspondents.

Paul J. McGahan, Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Inquirer, reviews this early history in a report which was printed in the Congressional Record. As in most advances of this kind, the supposed victory was just an opening skirmish. Restrictions, attempted censorship and efforts to doctor the news continued spasmodically, but the floor privileges were retained.

James Gordon Bennett, the elder, a rough-and-ready battler who enjoyed a fight with no holds barred, finally chalked up a notable victory over the news obstructionists. Arriving in Washington in 1839, as correspondent for the New York Herald, he stepped into some fast milling with Senator Southard, president pro tempore of the Senate, who tried to bar reporters from the use of Senate facilities. The fight went on for several years with repeated gains for the "letter writers," as correspondents were then called.

In 1856, a Senate resolution gave the reporters the exclusive use of certain seats in the Senate gallery. Privileges, rights and immunities of the press in its legitimate pursuits of news were further established and clarified in 1873.

Battle Finally Won

While "eternal vigilance is the price of liberty," it looks as if the battle has finally been won. If so, the newspapermen may pride themselves on the fact that they not only fought but assumed responsibility. As they cut loose from the ball and chain of congressional interference, they established and maintained rigid standards and requirements of their own.

The press gallery isn't safe for lobbyists or fixers. If you think there is anything loose or casual about a working ticket to the capitol press box, just try to get it with anything short of the fullest certification of your credentials. You have to prove up to the hilt that you are on shift for a daily newspaper; that you are writing and printing news copy and that you represent a real newspaper and not

After Six Years' Trial--Beginning To Have Doubts about the Insect Eradicator

Congressmen Show Little Enthusiasm For Roosevelt's Latest Spending Spree

By CHARLES F. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Congressional comment seems to be considerably less than enthusiastic relative to President Roosevelt's plan for the federal guaranteeing, up to nearly four billions, of self-liquidating investments in improvement projects throughout the United States.

It's agreed that an improvement, which ultimately will pay for itself and yield dividends while doing so, is all right. The question that's raised is, "Will many such projects do that?" There are plenty of congressional skeptics, to judge from what they say.

For instance:

Toll roads? It's quite generally conceded that they ought to be profitable in the east, where there's lots of traffic. But away out west, where traffic is skimpy? If the western roads prove to be losers the eastern ones will have to bear their share of the loss. On an average, will there be any margin of profit?

Some Go Broke

Would-be farmers, who want to buy farms? Some of them, thrifty chaps, will do well, but others will go broke. How will they average up?

Localities that want to build courthouses and city halls? These edifices are nice to have, but they're not dividend-paying. Neither are hospitals and waterworks and sewers. They're fine to have, but are they self-liquidating?—except in the very long run?

And Latin American governments, already in default on their obligations? Well, they already are in default. Does that make them look like good financial risks?

A private banker, asked for an extension of credit, is pretty inquisitive. Will the U. S. government be adequately so? Won't unreliable folk like me, illustratively, be able to get ourselves underwritten by Uncle Sam, without much investigation?—and then die or otherwise disappear, leaving nothing but a financial vacuum behind?

Capitol Hill Skeptical

These are the queries I hear up on Capitol Hill. The Republicans are the most outspoken doubters, of course. They're unanimous. Anti-New Deal Democrats (like Senators Byrd, Glass, Bailey, Clark and Tydings) are equally standpatterish.

But there also are quite a few semi-anti-New Deal Democrats who have their compunctions. They're not quotable. Yet everybody knows which side they're on. In the last analysis how they'll vote is problematic, but they're no safe betting for the New Deal.

And there are ultra-Progressives who dissent from some details of the Roosevelt lending program. Senator Johnson of California, for one, can be gambled on to oppose loans to defaulting American governments. He has a law against it—a particularly pet law to him, "Pro" and "Anti."

Anti-New Deal Democrats are as sore as the Republicans are at the presidential introduction of the self-liquidating issue at the present moment.

The Democratic "antis" reckon that it was shot in at the last minute, with no time to argue it. Their theory is that it was done deliberately.

The Republicans think so, too. The idea is that the thing won't have had time to fizzle by early 1940, that it will look good then, and that it will make a cleanup in November, regardless of the future.

That's what the Republicans are afraid of. They have had, in Washington, what was known as "The Capitol Daily," which has just popped. "Lack of working capital," it announces, "forces temporary suspension. Meanwhile helpful suggestions from subscribers will be gratefully received."

The Democrats, in short, appeal to the anti-New Deal Republicans.

When the Psalm Singers Slip

From the Pittsburgh Press.

The word pusillanimous is a long one, but not too large to cover what is going on in our so boastfully advertised new moral climate.

Such events as:

A national House of Representatives which, without taking a record vote, decrees an income tax on everybody in the District of Columbia except themselves and their help.

A Congress too tired and too timid to face the capital-labor situation; and apparently resolved to go home without doing anything about it, though this economically sick country could be turned toward recovery by adopting a mediation system which would greatly reduce and perhaps eliminate the labor disputes that continue to break out like a rash over the whole nation. That, and an accompanying renovation of the Wagner Labor Relations Act to make it work as its author intended, and to dovetail with mediation.

Collusion between Democratic committee leaders and Congressmen to scuttle the Hatch Bill which would take relief out of politics and end the henchman racket. The only reason given being that passage "would threaten party success at the polls."

Success, be it noted, of a party which for so long has got away with the holier-than-thou business of prating loudly of its idealism.

And then those incidents of county agents selling memberships in a lobbying outfit through the broadly implied threat that if the farmers don't kick in their benefits will shrink and die.

All the elements in the picture we have described are by no means attributable just to the Democrats. But they are showing up in a time when such a stress has been put on political morals that they are particularly impressive and disheartening.

If they happened under a Harding there would be a great public protest but little surprise.

In other words, when the town rake hells around, faith in virtue is not seriously damaged. It's only when the preacher and the psalm singer go wrong that an epidemic of cynicism breaks out.

Brainstorm of Billions Risky

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Washington, D. C. June 29.—A new last-minute magic proposal to spend billions "outside the budget" "without increasing debt or taxes" is a blessing or a curse?

We never did it before. Presumably, if Mr. Hoover started it when the depression first came and Mr. Roosevelt has continued it, we wouldn't have any important increase in debt now. The budget would long ago have been balanced and taxes would be lower. If it is good now, it is good then and ever since. It is a shame that we and all the other countries—all down the line—didn't discover this magic long ago.

Just who made this startling discovery isn't altogether clear. David Cushman Coyne first was writing about it many months ago. Like many another New Dealer, it took time to work. Most responsible financial and economic experts say it is poison. Quite recently Roosevelt, not suggesting that he favored it, said that he had discussed it. Then suddenly, at the end of this session of Congress, he launched it. He launched it, full fledged policy.

Either Right or Wrong

Well, either it is right or wrong. If it is wrong, it is just undercover way of plunging a people into unbearable debt, endangering everything they have. If it is right, it may be the road to a reversal of the export of ages and, in spite of the book maxims, we may have something for nothing and can have more than we have without any effect.

It is a vital decision and we need to know something about it. We need to know it. Mr. Coyne is a very smart and likable young man, so is Mr. Berle. But they are not first people I would turn to for advice before I began to invest my own trust estate. I would at least look at similar experiments of governments and our own sleazebagging. I would like to hear from other authorities.

Numerous Queries To Answer

We have done a great deal "investing" on something like a plan. Have the loans really been self-liquidating? How many are due? How many have been extended and for how long and how often? What has happened to other "self-liquidating" like that of the Farm board and the Housing administration? What about the "security" that has been taken by government lending agencies in political pressure? Is it sufficient to it over-valued? What is the limit for liquidation of these loans? Exactly what is proposed here "self-liquidating"? Is it a battle?

A road? A hospital? A schoolhouse? A government-trained adagio dancer? A piccolo player? A loan to Nicaragua or Brazilian dictator? What happens to money borrowed by Latin-American Duces on Franco money? How do they get it? What happened to form Latin-American loans?

I can't fill this column with questions marks but those just used, not one-tenth of those that, in prudence, ought to be publicly asked and answered for the public protection.

Not Half Far Enough

Senator Byrd's resolution asking for full reports on the operation of federal lending agencies doesn't go half far enough. Yet it is doubtful whether even that self-audit, the operators of public operations under question will be available before we plunge headlong into unknown and uncharted and dangerous sea of "bold experimentation" by inexperienced administrators.

If you pause, back away and look at this rash and unstudied brainstorm of billions, it seems incredible and preposterous that responsible legislators would consider it for moment without a thorough examination and exposure and debate exactly what is involved.

It may be incredible and yet, the present writing, and except for some singed-cat questioning loans to "backward and crippled countries," now in default, no important opposition or demand for debate has arisen in respect of what may be the most dangerous and destructive proposal ever presented Congress.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Ladies' Auxiliary of Central Y. M. C. A. Is Entertained at the "Y" Camp

Thirty-five members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Central Y. M. C. A. were entertained at their annual outing Thursday at the Y Camp at Springfield, W. Va., with luncheon and dinner given by W. H. Lewis, general secretary, and camp director. A women's baseball game, swimming and boating activities were featured.

Members attending were Mrs. Laura Aaron, Mrs. Marion Anthony, Mrs. T. A. Beightol, Mrs. S. H. Bailey, Mrs. Charles Burton, Mrs. Anna Bachman, Mrs. J. E. Chapell, Mrs. John Deitz, Mrs. Lucy Eyer, Mrs. Margaret Fay, Mrs. C. A. Feaser, Mrs. Arthur B. Foale, Mrs. Edna Gaston, Mrs. H. Jenkins, Misses Anna and Mollie Kraft, Mrs. O. S. Largent, Mrs. Leo Leasure.

Mrs. George Mays, Mrs. A. G. McElfish, Mrs. G. McLaughlin, Miss Ada Miller, Mrs. George Phillippi, Mrs. R. D. Robertson, Mrs. E. Lee Shaw, Mrs. George A. Siebert, Mrs. R. L. Stallings, Mrs. J. Tipton, Mrs. Charles Thompson, Mrs. W. J. Wilkinson, Mrs. O. Wilson, Mrs. M. Albright, Mrs. A. E. Zihlman, Mrs. Elmer Carter and Mrs. J. H. G. Miller, president of the Ladies' Auxiliary.

Registration Opens For Girl Scout Camps

Leaders announced yesterday that Girl Scouts and their friends now may register for day camps to be held at the Celanese pool, July 11, 12, 13 and 14. Registration cards must be submitted at the headquarters, 72 Greene street, before Thursday noon, July 6. Health examinations will be conducted by a Doctor of medicine each morning at 8:30 o'clock, for all girls going to camp.

A special rate will be given those who register for all four days. Buses will supply transportation to and from camp.

The day camp committee consists of Mrs. Franklin W. Kremer, chairman and camp director; Mrs. Hugo Keller, Mrs. Leo McDonald, Mrs. Wyand F. Doerner, Mrs. Joseph Williams, Mrs. Frank U. Davis, Dr. W. B. Johnson, medical examiner, and Miss Florence Ann Schlott, day camp director.

There will be, in addition to the camp director, a camp nurse, a Red Cross instructor, a business manager and counselors for each age group. It is the aim of the entire staff to see that every camper has a healthful and happy camping experience. The day camp program will include unit activities, swimming, hiking, games, archery, arts and crafts, cooking-out, story-telling and campfire followed by taps.

Girls are requested to wear a dress or play suit (green shorts preferred), and sturdy shoes, but no halters or slacks. Each day the camper will bring her nosebag, drinking cup, pocket knife, towel, bathing suit, cap and slippers and change to buy milk at the Celanese stand.

Annual Luncheon

The American Home group of the Woman's Civic Club held its annual luncheon yesterday at the home of Mrs. George Johnson, Narrows Park, with Mrs. Frank Malin, chairman of the committee in charge.

The afternoon was spent in playing games. The following members attended:

Messrs H. T. Robinson, John I. Vandegrift, Ira Vandegrift, Roy Vandegrift, Roy Eves, E. O. Pritch, Patrick Cavanaugh, Wm. Blake, Nellie Potter, J. W. Holmes, N. P. Jordano, Allen Fisher, Joe Miller, Wm. P. Beyerle, R. L. Frederick, son, with Miss Royce Hodges, Mrs. J. B. Clement and Mrs. Findley Hendrickson as guests.

Candy Sale Winners

Candy sales for the purpose of raising funds to help finance the Girl Scout day camp were concluded Wednesday. Camperships were offered to ten Scouts of this city, and two from Frostburg, for making the highest number of sales of candy boxes. The lucky girls will enjoy four days at the day camp at the Celanese pool and will be given their transportation to and from camp, two free swims and their materials for making one article of handicraft each day. They are:

Josephine Williams, Troop 16; Betty Collins, Troop 5; Virginia Greathouse, Troop 7; Sara Lancaster, Troop 20; Georgia Huster, Troop 20; Nancy Hoff, Troop 2; Drucilla Parrish, Troop 20; Ruth Lee Durst, Troop 4; Anne Cetter, Troop 2, and Shirley May, Troop 20, all of Cumberland.

The winners from Frostburg are Lucy Hartig and June Rodda.

Two girls not yet registered in a troop, but deserve honorable mention because of the many boxes they sold, are Bonnie Davis and Doris Thrasher.

SALLY'S SALLIES

The unpleasant consequence of the swelled head is the cold shoulder.

Cozad-Sliss

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sliss, 241 Center street, Frostburg, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Helen Elizabeth, to John L. Cozad, son of Mrs. Ruby Deneen, 400 Race street, this city, on June 24, in the Mount Vernon Place Methodist church, Baltimore, by the Rev. Harold A. Bosley.

Events in Brief

Mrs. Ray Boyer, 540 Fairmont avenue, entertained Tuesday afternoon with a party celebrating the second birthday of her son, Ronald Ray. Refreshments were served.

Miss Eleanor A. McStay, Germantown, Pa., has been visiting her aunt and uncle Mr. and Mrs. John A. Gallen, Patterson avenue, for the past week. Miss McStay has also been entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Gallen and Mr. and Mrs. Norton J. Gallen.

The 'delphia Bible class of the Church of Christ will meet at the church at 7:30 o'clock this evening. The Faithful Worker's Sunday school class of Kingsley Methodist church, met at 7:30 p. m. yesterday at the home of Mrs. Gladys Sills, 17 Weber street.

The 4H Junior Extension Club will meet at the home of H. W. Beggs, assistant county agent, at Woodlawn, LaVale, on July 5, at 6:00 p. m. A picnic and program with fireworks will accompany the business meeting. Miss Maude Bean, Miss Margaret Loar and Mr. Beggs are in charge of the arrangements.

The Shanholtz reunion will be held Sunday, July 2, at the old reunion grounds at Camp Walker, 8 miles east of Romney, W. Va.

LET YOUR MATE WIN

HOW OFTEN we have been end-played, and obliged to lead into declarer's tenaces, just because we didn't have enough nerve to pass a lead and hope our partner could win it! Sometimes there is no risk really in letting such a 'rick go by, as, if it cannot be won by our mate, at least we are saved from presenting an extra trick to the declarer on a silver platter.

upon cashed two top clubs and led the spade J. When West won this with the A, he couldn't help presenting a trick to the declarer, either by leading a spade for a ruff in the North and a discard of South's losing heart, or else a heart, which would prevent any losers in that suit. He chose the spade, so that the declarer had nothing more to lose than another diamond, and so made his contract.

Had West let the spade J go by to the Q, East's return of a red card would have set the contract.

Matching Up Your Face With Powder

JOY HODGES... selects her powder with the greatest care.

By HELEN FOLLETT

MATCHING the powder to the complexion isn't the simple matter the girls think it is. Complexions can be gardenia-like, peachy, tawny, tann, sallow, parchment color, ruddy, ivory, beige or florid. You wouldn't believe it, would you? Many hurried shoppers select a flesh tint or rachelite, let it go at that.

Believe it or turn up your impatient nose, but a matching powder can be found for any skin of any color. If you are particularly fussy, the attendant at the make-up bar in the beauty shop will mix one to order. Yes, madame. She will measure the ingredients, write down your prescription and will fill it for you when the powder box goes empty.

Select a shade slightly darker than your skin; it will hide blemishes that you may fancy are on your celestial countenance. A powder that is of too light a tone is bound to look smeary or patchy. Buy small powder pads so you won't feel that it is an extravagance to throw them away. Soiled powder pads are a common source of blackheads and facial eruptions.

Lipsticks aren't as flaming as they have been, are more inclined to faces. But always the same old have a shimmer. Rouge is used so sparingly that it seems to have gone into retirement. New fashions, new girls.

Hat brims are flattering. Think of that when your eyes pounce upon a little bonnet the size of a thin dime. Brims protect the eyes from the sun so you won't get squint lines. They cast a shadow so that if lines are already with you they won't show up like sore thumbs.

Brimmed hats are more harmonious with the long bob than are tiny hats perched over one eye. That long lanky look from the top of the ears to the shoulders where the bob rests is trying, even if one is young and beautiful. To get the right hat and the right hairdress together is every woman's job and responsibility these days.

HAVE YOU any beauty problems? Let the Beauty Box Editor help you solve them. Address all inquiries regarding beauty to the Editor of the Beauty Box, care of this newspaper. Be sure to enclose an addressed, stamped (three cents) envelope for reply.

Hints for Building A Good Posture

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.
I wish every parent of a little child who reads this would sit down right away and send five cents to the Children's Bureau, Department of Labor, Washington, D.C., and ask for the pamphlet on "Good Posture in the Little Child."

Here is how the pamphlet summarizes the question of what brings about good posture:
"Good general health; good nutrition; freedom from fatigue; freedom from repeated or long continued infections and from diseases that bring about deformities; good sight and hearing."

"A well-balanced diet, including the foods that help to build bone and muscle—milk, fruit, green vegetables, eggs, meat (and cod-liver oil for the child under two).

"Plenty of sleep and rest."

Outdoor Exercises

"Varied exercises outdoors—running, jumping, skipping, climbing. Encouragement by parents to take part in games and play that lead to symmetrical development of the body."

"Wearing well-planned, well-fitting clothes and shoes, which put no strain on the bones or muscles or soft tissues of the child, but let them develop naturally."

"Sitting in a chair that supports the lower part of the child's back and is low enough to let him keep his feet flat on the floor. (I should add, or with a comfortable foot rest)."

"Sleeping in a bed that does not sag, with a firm, comfortable mattress and a flat spring; using no pillow, or a very small one, so that the child's neck is straight."

To quote from a paragraph on clothes:
"The little child's shoulders are easily pulled forward into bad position by hose supporters that put weight upon the outer parts of them. For this reason the underwaist or whatever garments the hose supporters are fastened to should place the pull near the child's neck, where it can be borne satisfactorily. An underwaist with a 'built-up neck' does this and is much more desirable than one with ordinary shoulder straps. A supporter with wide back also puts the weight near the neck and permits the child's shoulders to hold their natural position. These supporters should be fastened at the sides, not in front or toward the front, as the latter positions pull the shoulders forward and down. They should not be fastened so tightly as to cause strain at waist-line or shoulders."

The pamphlet has many graphic illustrations of good postures. It is a veritable gold mine for mothers. Do send to Washington for it.

Nine baby girls born while King George and Queen Elizabeth recently visited Toronto, Canada, were named Elizabeth, and three boys were named George.

Taking them in order, here is the lineup of the programs:

Buddy Clark's musical weekly takes the time at 7 o'clock occupied so long by the First Nighter.

Johnny presents with Johnny Green transfers from Saturdays to 7:30. Incidentally, this program follows right after the MBS limited network presentation of Johnny Presents at 7, meaning that the two programs on different chains have to be put on from a common studio.

Takes New Time

The First Nighter is taking a new time at 8:30.

In its ABC of NBC at 6:45 WJZ-NBC is to set up a five-way hookup so that it can put on five commentators in this country and Europe all on one circuit.

Points of discussion are to produce:

WJZ-NBC 1 p. m. Women in the Making of America, Mrs. George Gellhorn on "Women in Politics and Government," WJZ-NBC 3 p. m. from Copenhagen, International Chamber of Commerce convention.

retiring president, Thomas J. Watson, interviewing the new president, Sigfrid Edstrom.

WEAP-NBC 5, Institute of Democracy of Northwestern University. "The Political Personality," WOR-MBS 9:45, Publisher Frank Gaurert on "Failures," WOR-MBS 10:15, Raymond Cram Swing and H. V. Kaitenborn on "Problems Facing American Youth."

Speaking from New York, Sir William McLean, knight commander of the Order of the British Empire, is to discuss "British Colonial Development and American Cooperation," via WEAP-NBC at 9:30 p. m. Friday.

Suggestions Are Given
By Safety Council

Chicago, June 29—In the face of a mounting tide of pre-Holiday accidents throughout the country, the National Safety Council today issued six suggestions for holding down the Fourth of July toll. They are:

1. Don't use fireworks.
2. Take it easy on the road. Give yourself plenty of time. Don't speed or take chances in passing—especially on curves or hills.
3. Don't overdo in exercise, exposure to sun or eating.
4. Don't drive if you drink.
5. It's always train time at a railroad crossing. Look both ways.
6. If you swim—Don't go in alone or when overheated. Wait an hour after eating. Know the depth of the water. Don't show off or indulge in horseplay.

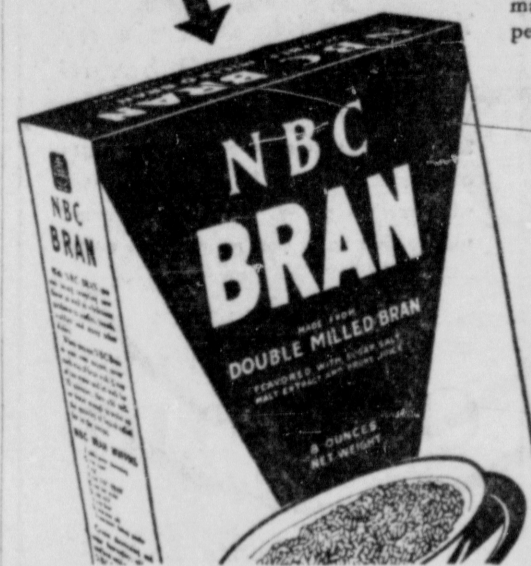

car lines with buses, the survey revealed.

Bus systems are owned and operated also by Detroit, San Francisco, Seattle, Phoenix, Eureka, Calif., Tacoma, Coral Gables, Fla., San Angelo, Tex., Greenfield-Montague, Mass., Monroe, La., Radford, Va., and Culver City and Santa Monica, Calif. The first five cities operate their bus systems in conjunction with city-owned streetcar lines.

Sixteen Cities Operate
Own Coach Systems

Chicago, June 29—Following a trend toward replacement of streetcars with buses, at least sixteen American cities now own and operate their own motor coach transportation systems, a survey by the International City Managers' Association showed today.

Three cities—Alexandria, La., Ashtabula, O. and St. Petersburg, Fla.—have replaced within the last year their entire city-owned street-

Baptist Ministers To Meet July 7 at Braddock Heights

Frederick, Md., June 29 (AP)—Baptist leaders from Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia will take part in the twenty-third annual summer assembly at Braddock Heights July 7 to 14.

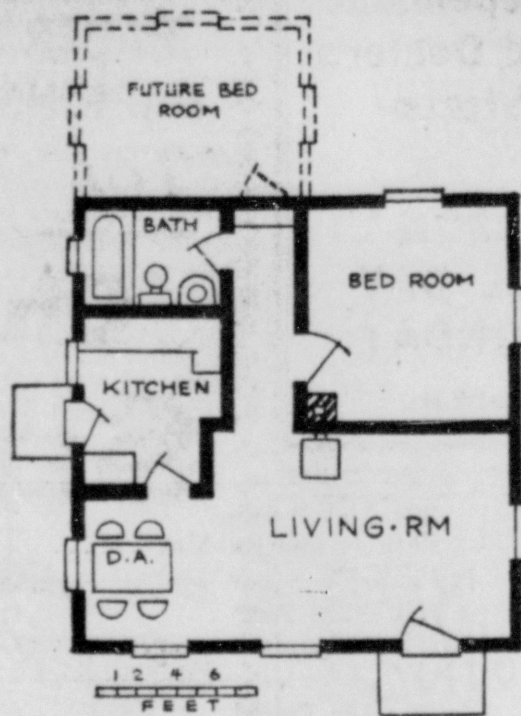

Plans for the assembly, along with a list of approximately 50 speakers and lecturers, were announced today by the Rev. W. C. Royal, Frederick, assembly president.

First of the four units to participate in the training union, which will convene July 7 and remain in session three days. The annual sermon will be delivered at the morning worship July 9 by the Rev. Dr. William Owen Carver of Lexington, Ky. New officers will be elected July 8 and installed the following day.

Other units scheduled to attend the assembly are the summer school for Christian workers, Maryland-District of Columbia pastors' conference and Maryland Baptist Women's Missionary Union. Different speakers will be available for each session of the four groups.

Mrs. Samuel R. Barnes of Baltimore is director of the Missionary Union, which will study organization, enlistment, efficiency, finances and spirituality. Other features will include a camp conducted by the Rev. Frank K. Brasington and a girls' auxiliary house party in charge of Mrs. Leslie M. Bowling. Other assembly officers are Dr. Rufus W. Weaver of Washington, advisory director, and Dr. Joseph T. Watts of Baltimore, general director.

This 'House with a Future' Allows for Extra Bedroom

By The AP Feature Service
Here's a grove house designed for the family which wants to add just one bedroom in the future. The dining room above is planned with a wide entrance into the living room to give a greater feeling of space. A door in the rear hallway of the original plan allows entrance to the future room, indicated by dotted lines. Cost of the basic house in an average mid-western community would be about $2,015. The future bedroom would cost about $340. These figures do not include the cost of the lot, range, architect's service and similar items. They would run to about $750. Although figured for lowest costs, this design meets rigid requirements of the Federal Housing Authority.

Rattlesnake Bite Permitted by Man To Show His Faith

Walter Mills Goes to Church with Badly Swollen Arm

Clendening Hollow, Va., June 29 (AP)—A devout young mountaineer nursed a mottled and swollen arm last night as he strode to the "meeting house," still disdaining medical aid for the rattlesnake bite he perceived as "an example to non-believers."

The little Holiness Church where 24-years-old Walter Mills again demonstrated his "trust in God" a week ago lies less than a mile from southwest Virginia's biggest recent development, a $10,000,000 artificial silk mill under construction near Narrows.

Mills' arm was swollen almost thrice its normal size today as he told questioners of his experience in the church around which the life of this mountain settlement revolves and where services are held five nights a week.

He handled the 36-inch rattler "about five minutes" before it sank its fangs into his hand in the climax to a session by Mrs. Effie Gilmer, Miles related.

The arm still was swollen somewhat from the bite of a copperhead he brought into the church June 1, Mills explained, when he induced the rattler to bite him.

Then he walked from his house to the church, "a stone's throw" away, and exhibited the big snake kept in a box behind the pulpit.

"I let one bite me twice mer," he said. "Do it again? Sure I'll do it again—if it me to."

Grace Moore Sails

New York, June 29 (AP)—Grace Moore, opera and film star, sailed aboard the liner Normandie today for a vacation on the French Riviera. She said she might dispose of a villa there because she felt it would be damaged or destroyed in case of war.

Physicians Stumped By Fever Blisters!

LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
This column is often, in fact, a place where the doctor is stumped. It cannot even attempt to solve a problem. And the requests seem so simple, too. If we were asked to solve the next war, we would not be embarrassed because that is a complicated, man-sized job, but we asked to print a cure for fever blisters.

What we have been deluged by is what peremptory demands for a cure for canker sores in the mouth. Now that would appear to be a simple thing. Canker sores are those little, white, painful areas that appear on the tongue and cheek; they come and go, and while they are there they hurt. Now I haven't the slightest idea of the cause of them, nor how to make them go away any sooner than when they are good and ready to. If they were canker sores, instead of canker—if they were something big and dangerous—I could tell in a minute. But it isn't only me; I have tried to get advice from other doctors in order to assuage my readers' anguish, but none of them knows any remedy for canker sores.

No One Knows
It has been the same way with fever blisters. I don't know anything about them and nobody else has ever practiced medicine knows anything about them. If you asked a doctor about ulcer of the stomach, heart failure, or diabetes, or brain tumor, you would get a long course on treatment. But for

Another Tragic Story For Mr. Ripley

St. Joe, Ark., June 29 (AP)—Will Rice tells this tale with a straight face (and one of those stern, you-certainly-wouldn't-doubt-my-words looks):
"Mrs. Rosie Yoder was hoeing on her Van Buren county farm when she saw a rattlesnake and promptly cut off its head with the hoe.
"Her pet can ran over to the dead snake, the severed head bit the cat and the animal died almost immediately."

Rhododendron Blooms On Statehouse Lawn

Charleston, W. Va., June 29 (AP)—West Virginia's state flower, the Rhododendron, bloomed on the statehouse lawn here for the first time. The plants, the only ones ever to be used in statehouse landscaping, were put in this spring.

Pour Concrete for Bridge at Hancock

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., June 29 (AP)—The pouring of concrete on the main section of the new Potomac river bridge to Hancock, Md., has started. Construction officials said the bridge will be ready for use in the fall.

Film Comedian Dead

Hollywood, June 29 (AP)—Bobby Vernon, 42, film comedian of the pie-throwing days, died of a heart attack at his home yesterday.
Vernon starred in some 200 silent day comedies for Christie, Mack Sennett and Universal studios. Vernon was born in Chicago.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
E. E. B.: "For over two years I have craved for raw carrots. My skin is quite yellow and this has worried me considerably. Friends have told me that the craving is a sure sign of cancer. Is that true?"
Answer—It is not true that a craving for carrots or any other food is a sign of cancer. However, it is possible for carrots to cause a yellow discoloration of the skin.

Patrolman Resigns

Wheeling, W. Va., June 29 (AP)—Patrolman Francis Weisend, suspended recently from the police department while his superiors investigated reports he had struck a woman, resigned yesterday.

The woman, Clarice Nutter, filed an affidavit asserting her injuries were due to a fall.

Irish Pride Should Be Put in Pocket

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Copyright, 1939, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

"Dear Miss Fairfax: I'm answering Patricia's letter, which I read in my morning's paper a few days ago. Patricia, my dear girl, you're Irish and so am I. And you know that people of our race are stubborn. But you were too stubborn.

"I don't think John really meant it when he said that he didn't love you enough to marry you, and it would have been better if you had ignored it instead of blowing off steam.

"A man of his age making $48.00 a week and having a nest egg besides is too good to lose. You should have married him immediately instead of waiting for a big church wedding. That doesn't get you anywhere, and only accumulates bills. We had a nice church wedding with a mass, best man, bridesmaid, and my friends coming to see us married. We had music too. What more does any girl want. And that didn't oblige us to wait and save for two years, or for two weeks either.

"Make it up with John. Your mother can stay with you as long as she is alone, and I'm sure you and John will be a comfort to her.

"Regarding this other man, you'd only make his life and yours miserable. Put your Irish pride in your pocket and turn this love of yours and John's into the blessing it will be. Good luck to you both. And as the Irish say 'God bless you.' L. B."

Letters Pour In

Highly interesting letters continue to pour in with suggestions to Patricia, the girl whose engagement was broken by a man she loved devotedly. Later she heard this man suffered from a nervous breakdown and she is in doubt whether to go to her former fiancé or to marry a man she respects more than she loves, but who offers her a beautiful home, peace and security.

And here's another point of view: "Dear Miss Fairfax: I was especially interested in reading about the case of Patricia in your column, and I'm hoping you may pass on to her this practical suggestion from me. No, I'm not hard-boiled, but I can't bear to think of a charming girl, devoted, loyal with the real ideals of life, wasting her affections on a man who has no more steadfastness of purpose than a weather-vane."

Like Bolt from Blue

"According to Patricia's letter, he was never happy out of her sight, and then like a bolt from the blue he tells her he doesn't think he loves her enough to marry her. Unless some other girl has got hold of him, or he has discovered that he is mortally ill, or about to lose his job, what kind of a wily nilly fellow is this John?

"Patricia says she's Irish; well, I'm Irish too and I'm thoroughly ashamed that anyone with Irish blood will lead on a fine girl, and then tell her he's uncertain of his feelings. What Patricia should do is marry the second man, the man who loves her, without any weather-vane indecision. A man who offers his unwavering devotion and a good home. All of which are blessings which Patricia deserves. IRISH LADY."

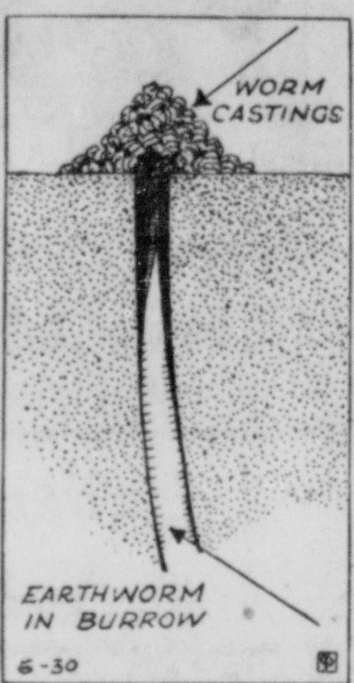

Cities Using Machines For Signing Checks

Chicago, June 29—Faced with the necessity of getting out large payrolls and other payments in a limited time, many cities and states are using check-signing machines without special charter or statutory authorization, the Municipal Finance Officers' Association of the United States and Canada reports. The cities include New York City, Boston, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Saginaw, Mich.

In Boston, no special legislation was necessary to permit use of the machines because, city officials said, for all intents and purposes signatures are regarded as originals.

Today's GARDEN-GRAPH

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Pest proofing the lawn

At this time of the year, earthworms and various grubs and beetles often do considerable damage to the lawn. While an average number of earthworms are beneficial to the soil in which they work, too many are objectionable because of the worm casts which tend to make the lawn unsightly and if too abundant are likely to smother out the finer grasses. An earthworm in its burrow and the wormcast at the surface are shown approximately life size in the accompanying Garden-Graph.

The June beetle also make piles of "castings" about the lawn. Since the June beetle has larger burrows than the earthworm, it produces a larger pile of castings.

A cure for both enemies, and a method of pest-proofing the lawn, is the use of arsenate of lead. Use five pounds to every thousand square feet of lawn area. Mix the arsenate with sand or loam so it can be spread evenly. Use a pound of arsenate of lead to each bucket; or half of sand or loam. Apply only when the grass is absolutely dry. After spreading the arsenate of lead, sprinkle the lawn thoroughly to wash the arsenate off the grass blades.

HELP KIDNEYS PASS 3 LBS. A DAY

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills. Advertisement

Lou Nova Now Wants Summer Shot at Louis

Coast Heavy and Manager Figure Champ Is "Ripe"

Afraid Someone Else Will Beat Them to Bout and Take Title

Nova Figures Max Baer Would Beat Louis In Return Clash

By WHITNEY MARTIN
New York, June 29 (AP)—He'd rather wait a year, for mercenary reasons, but after events of last night Ray Carlen thinks maybe it would be best to send his boy, Lou Nova, against Joe Louis next September. He figures the championship apple is ripe for picking, and doesn't want anybody to beat him to the ladder.

Carlen, wearing his usual harried, apprehensive expression, slid unobtrusively into a ring-side chair after the Louis-Galento brawl. Any attention he might have attracted was deflected by Nova. The guy positively glittered like a dishpan in the sun with his gorgeous blue ensemble and to add sound effects the cocky Lou babbled without a murmur about what he would do to Louis. If said when.

Afraid to Wait Now
Carlen in the past has been a little hesitant about admitting Nova was ready for the Bomber. Asked if he had changed his mind after seeing Galento box the champion, Carlen replied:

"I've thought all along Lou was ready, but I wanted to hold off the bout until next summer on account of the bigger gate. After seeing what happened tonight I'm afraid to wait. Someone else might beat us to him and take the championship."

Carlen was a little hazy as to just who the someone else might be, but he left the impression it didn't make much difference, that any two-fisted bird named Gus might be good enough to take the powder out of the Bomber.

"Louis can be hurt," he continued. "If Galento can put him down, he can be beaten. He doesn't know what to do when he's hurt. Nova and Galento? Nova would cut him to pieces."

"We're going to stay around New York all summer and shout from the rooftops until we get a Louis match. We'll earn it haven't we?"

"If He Had Louis Down?"

The dazzling Nova, who in a few short months has been transformed from a rather shy, modest lad into a giver of self-confident words, was more explicit.

"I'd like to have had Louis where Galento had him tonight," he said, apparently forgetting it took something like a ball bat to get Joe on the floor, and that to date he (Lou) has not carried one in the ring with him.

"Now if Baer had been in there against Louis tonight he wouldn't have let him get away."

Reminded that Baer was in there with Louis and Louis not only got away, but got away with murder, Nova retorted:

"Sure, but the Baer I fought wasn't the Baer Louis fought. You can't tell me that the Baer I fought isn't better than the Galento Louis fought tonight."

He insisted that he is more anxious than ever to get in with Louis after watching the Bomber's exhibition, but impartial critics still think Lou should think twice and then run at this stage of his career before meeting Louis any way but socially.

Nova is rangier and more clever than Galento, but he doesn't hit like Galento. In fact nobody hits just like Galento. It's sort of a leaping left hook, a whirling barrel with a club sticking out the side. But it's dynamite, and it's going to take a cleverer man with a punch like that to knock the dead pan dead. Right now there ain't no such animal.

Westvaco Tossers Win Over Piedmont

Westernport, June 29—Westvaco A.A. tossers bagged another Tri-Towns Softball League victory here Tuesday by defeating Piedmont Sunday School 10-4 on the Bruce High field.

The Pulpmen rapped only two more hits than Piedmont, 11 to 9, but bunched their blows more effectively to score a decisive victory.

Louis-Pastor; Nova-Galento To Battle This Fall

Survivors To Clash Next Year In Title Bout, Is Program

Louis Says Galento Changed Plan To Let Fight Go 10 Rounds

By SID FEDER
New York, June 29 (AP)—The heavyweight fashion parade, momentarily in the off-season after Joe Louis' four-round technical knockout over Tony Galento, was made ready for fall showing today with details virtually completed for two September bouts.

The Associated Press learned that these two bouts, looking toward a meeting between the victors next spring, would be:

1—Champion Louis in Detroit against Bob Pastor, the ex-New York University footballer who went ten rounds aboard his bicycle with the Brown Bomber two years ago.

2—Galento against the only other outstanding challenger of the moment, California Lou Nova, either in Philadelphia or New York.

Arrangement of these bouts, which would find the already talked-of rematch of the Louis-Galento blood and thunder thriller of last night coming off probably next June if both get by featured a day full of fade developments, that included:

Galento Not Serious
1—Louis, his only mark from Tony's thunderous left-hand shots a deep bluish bruise under the right eye, revealed that he went into the ring last night with the intention of letting the fight go about ten rounds and changed his mind when he was noored in the third session.

2—Joe Jacobs, Galento's manager, disclosed that Tony wasn't as serious about his training for Louis as his manager had made out. "Why," Jacobs said, "he was out almost every night till one or two o'clock, and he smoked cigars and drank beer the same as always."

3—Revelation by the fists of Galento and Max Schmeling (three years ago) that the Brown Bomber's chin is vulnerable, caused just about every fight manager to hurl a challenge at the champion. Even Joe Gould spoke his piece on behalf of a return go for Tommy Farr, who lasted 15 rounds with Louis.

Promoter Mike Jacobs turned thumbs down on this one since it involved holding the fight in London. Another challenge came from Mello Bettina, recognized in New York state as light heavyweight champion.

Grossed $333,302
Promoter Jacobs announced that gross receipts from the crowd of 34,852, plus $50,000 from radio and motion picture rights brought the total gross proceeds from last night's fight to $333,302.66, from which federal and state taxes were deducted. Louis collected $114,332.87, thus bringing his total ring earnings over the $1,500,000 mark. Galento's "cut" was $50,020.63.

Referee Arthur Donovan, who has been the third man in the ring in all Louis' fights here, decided he had never officiated at a "hotter" fight and said that until Tony went down under a murderous attack in the fourth he had no idea of stopping the bout. "Even when he's hurt," the veteran official explained, "Galento always is dangerous until he's knocked cold."

Louis said he didn't care who he fought next, although he explained he understood the winner of the recent Nova-Max Baer bout, which was Nova, was to get the shot.

"I know," he added, "I'd like to take on Mr. Galento again. I hit him harder with more punches than I ever hit anybody. Nova or no, body else would be as tough as him."

South End League Sponsors Double Bill For Injured Player

The South End League is sponsoring a benefit doubleheader July 2 for Herman Athey who suffered a broken leg on June 14 while playing for the Candy Kitchen ten against the Lacy outfit.

Athey was voted the best second baseman in the league last year when he played for the Nehi Bottlers (now the Royal Crown Colas). In the opener the Candy Kitchen girls team of the Girls County League will cross bats with the Ridgeley Bloomer Girls. The Candy Kitchen lassies have won all seven of their league games and recently trimmed the Bloomers 9 to 1.

In the nightcap the leading North End Merchants of the East Side and the second place Candy Kitchen ten of the South End League will tangle.

U. S. Schoolmaster Again Wins On Wimbledon Court

Wimbledon, Eng., June 29 (AP)—Gene Smith, the big, beaming Berkeley (Calif.) English Teacher; in what promises to be a good exhibition.

The second encounter will bring together two good teams with the Merchants having a slight edge. Both teams will be at full strength with Don Knieriem of the Merchants and "Fuzzy" Hoyle of the C. K.'s doing the elbowing. Knieriem is the East Side League's leading hurler and Hoyle is a knockout artist of no mean ability.

A public address system will be used throughout the game. Umpires have not been selected as yet. Athey has been under a heavy financial burden as a result of his injury not only for medical bills but loss of work. He is employed at the Celanese plant.

Public Links Qualifying Round Play In Baltimore

Baltimore, June 28 (AP)—The first sectional qualifying round for the national public links golf tournament here next month will be played tomorrow with 113 Baltimore and Washington shotmakers competing for the ten places allotted this district in the championship derby.

The Baltimore-Washington players will fight it out at the Mount Pleasant course, par 72 layout where the tournament will open July 24. The ten low scorers in the 36-hole medal test will win places in the tournament.

An estimated 3,500 pay-as-you-play golfers will enter qualifying rounds in 32 other cities between now and July 10.

Only 200 contestants will be allowed in the tournament, 193 of whom must qualify. Seven places were reserved for former champions. Al Leach of Cleveland is the defending champion.

CURTAINS FOR GALENTO'S TITLE QUEST

Referee Arthur Donovan steps in to save Tony Galento from further punishment at the first champion Joe Louis and ends his title quest in fourth round at the Yankee Stadium in New York. Helpless Tony hugs Donovan's knees as the referee pries him from the ropes after two minutes twenty-seconds of the fourth round. Louis stands by—lethal fists cocked—ready.

N.E. Merchants Win 6-5 From East Siders

The North End Merchants won 6-5 from East Side Merchants last evening at Constitution Park. Don Kriemier chalked up his eighth victory of the season by keeping seven hits scattered, after getting off to a bad start in the first inning when East Side scored all but one of its hits.

Snap Morris and G. Rice led North End's attack with two hits apiece while Bell and Lease were the heavy hitters for East Side, with two each. Alert fielding by North End pulled Kriemier out of several holes.

Tonight at North End Playground the North End Merchants play the East Side Senators at 6 p. m. The Merchants can clinch first honors by winning this game.

The other scheduled games in the East Side League were called off because of wet grounds except the Bowling Green-Davis Plumber's at the Rolling Mill diamond, which was awarded to the Davis Plumber's forfeit.

The score by innings:
N.E. Merchants.....103 011 0-6 9 0
East Side Merchants.....400 100 0-5 7 0
Batteries: Kriemier and Skidmore; Calhoun and Ash.

Red Hose Set Pace In Eckhart League

Eckhart, June 29.—The Upper Eckhart Red Sox were stopped 6-4 by the Kelly's Pump Tigers in a recent Eckhart Baseball League battle after coping five straight engagements. Duckworth, hurling for the Tigers, held the Reds in check through most of the game while his mates were scoring three runs off Edwards and three more off Schirmer.

Tri-County Game Off

The Tri-County Baseball League game between the Old Exports and the Paw Paw (W. Va.) Pirates, scheduled for the North End Playground, yesterday, was called off because of wet grounds.

STANDING OF CLUBS
Hutton's.....11 4 733
Vandegriff.....12 5 706
Martin.....5 11 312
Borror.....4 12 350

The Hutton and Vandegriff aggregations stayed on practically even terms in the Ridgeley Softball League spin by defeating the Martin and Borror outfits in games this week.

Borror's Dents outlast the Hutton crew but lost 8-6 when the Hustlers pegged two runs in the fifth to break a 6-6 deadlock, while the Vandegriff barely outlasted the Borror team to win 11-10 after leading 7-1 at the end of the third.

This afternoon's game between the Hutton and Vandegriff teams gives promise of being a tight battle. The scores of earlier games this week follow:

MARTIN'S.....005 100 0-6 11
HUTTON'S.....221 120 x-8 8
MARTIN'S.....McQuinn, Watchford and Bosley, Hutton's-Kincaid and Poling.

Saddle Strap Sam

I got more than "Totache's" today, and I hope I never have any more. . . and I go to "Brain Child" at Charles Town, the plug I kept picking so often earlier in the meet that it looked like a ham bone after a "Boy Scouts" wiener roast.

I see "Green Water" going in the third at Charles Town. It's been picked to win so often that nobody gives it a chance anymore. . . So I will. Being in the "dog house" generally I'm going to "DOG FLOWER" in the third at Delaware and let it go at that. . . Take it across the board since it paid off in "potpie phigures" when it ran second day before yesterday. . . As P. P. would say it looks like a "sure pop" . . . but I'm playing it safe.

Just got a "gander" at the Arlington entries and I see "Silver Braid" going in the first there. It came like the win to finish third Tuesday. . . and today may be the day for the "doings." Might just as well take another fling at the thing; it's going to get in, if not today then some day soon. . . It's that kind of a "jobbie."

SKID PROTECTION

When you MUST make a quick stop, this 1939 Geared-to-the-Road really holds, even on wet roads. It runs smoothly and quietly, too, gives longer mileage and real protection against skidding.

Beneath the tread you are protected against blowouts by extra strong cords, by extra heavy insulation, and by an extra heavy shock cushion.

The new Miller Imperial is tire value that's hard to beat—and it sells at regular tire prices.

Boat Crash Fatal Tolouth and Girl

Chesapeake, Md., June 29 (AP)—Funeral services were held today for the late Richard Hamilton Richardson, 23, who was killed in a boat crash on the Chesapeake river yesterday.

The couple died when Richardson lost control of his motor boat and crashed into the pier. Five other girls in the boat escaped with minor injuries.

Kent county authorities said no further investigation was planned.

Dr. Frank B. Hines, medical examiner, said Richardson received head injuries which probably caused his death. His body was recovered several hours later.

Miss Cooper died in the Kent and Queen Anne's hospital shortly after the accident.

Bobby Vernon Dead
Hollywood, June 28 (AP)—Bobby Vernon, 42, film comedian of the pie-throwing days, died of a heart attack at his home yesterday.

George W. Dorsey Named Tobacco Commissioner
Annapolis, Md., June 29 (AP)—Governor Herbert R. O'Connor announced last night the appointment of George W. Dorsey of Prince Frederick as commissioner of tobacco marketing under the new law passed by the legislature.

Dr. Randall Dead
Seattle, June 29 (AP)—The Rev. Dr. Edwin M. Randall, 77, former general secretary of the Epworth League of the Methodist Episcopal church, died here yesterday.

Wings of Youth

By HELEN WELSHIMER

SYNOPSIS
SARAH ANNE MELTON, minister's daughter and close friend of JUDITH DRAKE, daughter of luxury, made her childhood romance with Jack Courtney, who married suddenly by flying the Pacific, return and fall in love with Judith. To Perryville, Miss.

BOB KENNEDY, close friend of Jack's, receiving a broken leg in a crash at the airport.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

CORRINE'S face had become remote, yet oddly near, at the mention of the name "Robin." It was apparent to Sarah Anne that her sister knew that name, and it was equally apparent that it was a secret.

"That man, Punk Edwards, used it. I heard him call it."

"Oh-h-h!" There was relief in that tone. "Lynn didn't tell you about it?"

"Of course not. Why? What is it? The name his friends use, and I'm not one of them?"

"Nutt!" Her face was calm, her voice was better. "Some day I'll explain. I have to learn. Here comes Bob, anyway. You know, Sally Anne, he's a grand guy. Worth three and one-half of Judy's Jack, honest!"

Her voice was thrilling, her step was light. In one half moment she had crossed the bridge from unhappiness to happiness, from fear to relief. How? Why? What was there in the name of Robin to produce such sudden changes?

Then Sarah Anne put aside the mystery and reached for another coffee cup. "Cream and sugar?" she asked, masking her emotion with light words, necessary words which smoothed the pattern of living.

"Cream," Bob answered. "Heard the news? The flyer who was out to get Jack?"

"And you," Sarah Anne supplied quickly.

He smiled. "You bolster a man's ego, my sweet! I like it. Anyway, this man is really sick and the authorities from headquarters have taken him in charge. Suppose you tell me just what happened last night. None of us know your side of the story about the man who wanted Rhodes."

That was true. Yet the whole family knew that story. They had learned it from Lynn. Why had Punk Edwards, enemy, been so careful to advise him of every step? Perhaps Lynn, with that easy, nonchalant grace, had forced the story from him. There was a certain steel fiber back of his insolence.

Somewhere there was a mystery. The thread was near by. Only, if she did unravel it, she probably would find nothing but the wooden spool on which the cord was wound. She told Bob the story.

"Robin?" he repeated that name.

"Yes," she did not tell him that Corrinne, too, knew that name. It was not especially important, and it seemed to be a secret. Afterward, when she realized how that five-letter name might have helped her, had she mentioned all that she knew about it earlier.

But now the rain was stopping, the sun was making a green-gold light on the leaves, and the air smelled of wet, sweet grass. Anyway, Bob's next question erased the name from her mind.

"As a fanc of convenience, may I ask a question?" But his eyes were not part of the act. They gazed at her, frankly and honestly.

"You want to know how much longer the force must endure?" she asked softly. Did-did-did her parents treat you like a member of the family this morning?"

"Your family is one in a million. And Mrs. Allen approves of me. She came over to say so and bring me some early starts. It's just like this—this Rhodes bozo isn't making a permanent impression, is he?"

What she had expected Bob to ask, Sarah Anne did not know. Surely not this. He was not asking as though he were suing for her favorite. He sounded like an anxious brother.

Corrinne accepted them as though she had expected them.

"And if he is?" she asked, seeking to be gay. She never had cared for dark men with small black mustaches, no matter how perfect their profiles. But this man could not know that.

"He's not in Jack's class," he stated a fact.

"But what can Jack matter to me?"

Bob looked across the lawn and was quiet for so long that she glanced up from her empty plate. The penetrating blue-gray eyes were gazing into space, and the firm chin was a little stubborn.

Then Bob spoke. "I didn't know. What does he matter?"

Maybe, when a woman is so abruptly, simply not interested about a man who has withdrawn from her favor, pride sends up a bright banner. Anyway, Sarah Anne held her voice to one of gay indifference, as she said: "Jack's a dear old friend, that's all. That's all he ever was."

What she could not explain to the bronzed young aviator, whose face had regained its color since she had spun her dreams about an imaginary character and let Jack take the part. But his next words opened the door to her own confidence.

"You aren't the girl I think you are if you haven't a nostalgia for something in the past," he commented.

"You win! It was the feel of flying that got me, perhaps. Way up high, with everything under control. I had a hunch everything would stay that way, and the sky would always be filled with bright young birdmen chaffing imaginative maidens."

It was noon. The sun was out again. It wasn't the time for confidences or reminiscences, but he said: "I know. There's part of me that will always belong to Bernice, even if I don't see her for a thousand years."

Sarah Anne's face remained quiet, but her heart turned over. Friendship—well, if that was all Bob wished, at least that, was something. And as for herself, maybe that was all she wanted, too. Just the knowledge that someone would listen when she talked.

"There are a few jumps in autumn sunlight where I was at the stick when Bernice jumped," Bob continued, "and a night in a Coffee Pot at the Miami airport when she was pretty cut up over a college boy who married somebody else. She told me about it."

"I know. Jack stood for something fine, too." That was perfect. It was better to match the honesty of Bob's mood.

Corrinne accepted them as though she expected them. Then her eyes clouded. "Sorry I opened them, Sarah Anne. They're for you. From Lynn. A peace offering, I gather."

"Why a peace offering?" Bob drawled lazily from his swing. "Can't he like the girl well enough to send her an unbiased chocolate drop?"

Parents Held To Blame For Fireworks Injuries

Minneapolis, June 29—Credulous parents, overestimating the harmlessness of so-called "safe and sane" fireworks, are to blame for many of the 7,000 or more injuries, some of them fatal, which occur to children each Fourth of July, according to the warning just issued by a life insurance company.

No fire or explosive is entirely safe, the company's medical department points out, especially in the hands of small children.

Facing Another Serious Drought, Soviet Russia Tells Its Farmers Exactly How Deep They Must Plow

Cornerstone of Russian agriculture is the machine tractor which the government rents to the peasants.

Russian women at work in the fields on one of the Soviets' collective farms.

BY JACK VINCENT
Central Press Correspondent

Washington, June 29.—Soviet Russia, which experienced such a disastrous drought in 1938 that a wholesale purge of agricultural officials was ordered and carried out, today is facing another serious drought in 1939.

In fact, Soviet officialdom is so fearful of a crop failure this year that it has promulgated a sweeping decree for agriculture. Russian farmers are even told how deep they must plow.

These facts are being sent back to the United States department of agriculture's bureau of economics. They are relayed to this country from commercial attaches of this nation's embassy and consulates in the Soviet. Contained in diplomatic pouches they are unencensored.

Last Year's Purge

With them comes the first complete picture of the purge in Soviet agriculture in 1938.

So severe was it, according to the department of agriculture, that combined with the severe drought, "it was as if man and nature had combined to inflict a heavy loss on agriculture."

Agriculture still is the backbone of Russia, despite the Soviet's drives for industrialization and armament plants.

There is no estimate of how many peasants and agriculture officials fell before firing squads last year. However, the department of agriculture reports that on collective farms in Russia there were at least 3,000 new appointments in 1938. And those who were appointed succeeded somebody who was expelled, or worse still, shot.

"The purge," says the United States department of agriculture, "resulted in wholesale liquidation from top to bottom of the administrative and technical personnel piloting the ship of collectivized agriculture."

"And," stresses the department, "the phrase from 'top to bottom' is not merely a figure of speech."

In trying to draw a picture that the average American would understand, the agriculture department's report continues:

"The sweeping changes in the ranks of Soviet officialdom may, perhaps, be better visualized if compared with the turnover of government personnel in the United States in the pre-civil service days when a new administration came into power—except that the consequences for many of the 'outs' in the Soviet union are often more painful than temporary unemployment, and the tenure of the 'ins' is frequently a very brief one indeed."

Russia agriculture was still staggering from the effects of the droughts and purge when it entered the current year. On top of that, a survey by the Russian government of the 243,100 collective farms, ranging in size from 250 to 2,500 acres and comprising 10,000,000 peasant households.

Cornerstone of Russian agriculture, however, is not the collective farms themselves, but the machine-tractor stations. There are 6,300 such stations in Russia. The government owns all the tractors, combines and other complicated farm machinery. Not only do the tractor stations rent implements to peasants or contract to do their field work, but they comprise an important collector (for the government) of farm produce and are the centers of local agricultural administration.

Fearing another disastrous drought this year, the Russian government ordered a sweeping decree in an attempt to prevent another crop failure. Two years of crop failure in a row would mean famine for many districts.

Soviet Decrees

Among farm practices that the decree prescribes are: The depth of plowing must not be less than 20 or 22 centimeters (approximately eight or nine inches); depth of plowing must be strictly verified and the tractor stations and tractor drivers are held financially responsible for infractions; cultivation of the stubble after harvest; best local seed must be used as much as possible for sowing, the provision apparently directed against the practice of shipping in the other regions seed poorly adapted to local conditions; development of forest shelter belts, and improvement and expansion of the irrigation network.

"Incidentally," the department of agriculture concludes, "The decree is corroborative evidence of the severity of the 1938 drought."

Bittner Hurls Attacks at Operators and State Officials

"Collusion" Is Charged by UMWA Official in W. Va.

"Dumbfounded" To Find Coal Company Lawyers Representing State

Charleston, W. Va., June 29. (AP)—A charge of "collusion" between coal operators and the state department of unemployment compensation was made today by Van A. Bittner, president of the United Mine Workers District 17.

Bittner said he was "dumbfounded" yesterday to find coal company attorneys "directly representing" the department in hearings on the appeals of miners from a state decision denying them jobless benefits during the bituminous coal shutdown.

He added in a statement:

"The coal operators may have a right to intervene in these cases, but when their attorneys take direct charge, make all the necessary motions, one must arrive at the conclusion that there is collusion by the state administration of unemployment insurance with the coal operators."

Secretary Jesse V. Sullivan of the West Virginia Coal Association, replied:

"The department was represented by John Fox, legal counsel for the department, while other attorneys were there in the interests of those who must pay money into the unemployment compensation fund."

Bittner contended that in hearings on the same subject in Maryland, Pennsylvania and Tennessee "where unemployment insurance was granted the miners during this lockout, we were not confronted with this spectacle of the coal operators' attorneys handling the case for the state government."

W. Va. Amateur Golfers Gun for Title Next Week At White Sulphur Springs

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., June 29. (AP)—A host of contenders for West Virginia amateur golfing honors were a-gunning tonight for Frank Crum of Williamson, who is "not too optimistic" about his chances for retaining his crown in next week's firing.

Although the southpaw "Pride of Pigeon Creek" claims he is not in top form, his supporters just grin and point out that he finished second among the amateurs in the state open at Bluefield last week.

Just the same Crum is certain of plenty of opposition when the lads line up next Monday with amateurs old and new at the tournament game setting themselves for a title try.

Diminutive Ann Hoblitzel of Parkersburg, the defending women's champion, apparently had little to fear from the field which will oppose her efforts toward a third state crown.

Bass Season Opens In W. Va. Saturday

Charleston, W. Va., June 29. (AP)—Fishermen who claimed to know the best bass sections in West Virginia's streams may try their luck Saturday, but they can turn to trout fishing if the bass won't bite.

The smallmouth bass season opens July 1 and the trout season does not close until July 9.

The state conservation commission reported today that fishermen on the North Fork and South Branch and along the upper Greenbrier and Cranberry rivers should find an ample supply of both varieties.

The minimum length for bass is 10 inches. Eight may be caught each day and 100 during the season. Pointing out that the recent drought may have isolated many small bass in small pools, the commission requested sportsmen to release such stranded fishes.

The drought has had no appreciable effect upon spawning of bass in this state, since most of the spawning and nesting occurred before the drought really became effective, the commission reported.

Boy Drowns in River

Princess Anne, Md., June 29. (AP)—Otis Emory, 11, drowned late today while swimming with four young companions at the old steamboat wharf in the Manokin river. The body was recovered. The boy was the son of Mrs. John Emory, a widow.

Young People To Have Penny Supper

Program Will Also Be Given at Grantsville Church of the Brethren

Meyersdale, Pa., June 29.—The Baptist Young People's Division of the Church of the Brethren will serve a penny supper in the social rooms of the church Friday evening. There will also be music and other interesting numbers on the program.

Hospital Notes

Mrs. Alice Younk, Grantsville, underwent an operation yesterday for the removal of tonsils and adenoids in the Wenzel Hospital.

Nellie Albright, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Albright, of Salisbury street, Tuesday received treatment for severe burns on her hands as a result of a vessel filled with hot liquid which she was carrying having tipped over.

Mr. and Mrs. John Troutman, Deal, announce the birth of a son on June 23.

Brief Mention

A fair-sized audience assembled in the lecture room of the Church of the Brethren Tuesday evening to hear reports of the national conference of the denomination held in Anderson, Ind., recently, as related by the Rev. and Mrs. DeWitt L. Miller, Robert Kirchner, John Hartman and J. Vincent Saylor, who are delegates representing the various organizations of the local congregation.

Joseph Schrock, Salisbury street, in charge of the ballast distributing machine on the local division of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, had his left hand caught in the mechanism of the distributor while making minor repairs yesterday, badly crushing his hand and necessitating the amputation of the index finger at the Hazel McGilvery Hospital. The injured man returned to his home following the operation.

Mrs. Harvey L. Pike, Meyersdale, R. D., was taken suddenly ill Sunday and removed to the Hazel McGilvery Hospital, where her condition this morning was described as "fair."

On account of the success of the outing of the merchants and clerks, which was held last Wednesday at Dixie Tavern, near Grantsville, it was decided by the organization to hold a similar affair at Meadow Mountain Inn, near Frostburg, early in July on one of their Wednesday half-holidays that will be in vogue in July and August.

On account of Independence Day falling upon the monthly meeting date of the town council, the meeting will be held on the evening of the following day, Wednesday.

Miss Wilma Goodwin and her grandmother, Mrs. Hattie Shaffer, Broadway street, have returned from a week's visit with relatives and friends in Baltimore.

Jack McCartney, a student of Pennsylvania State College, spent the past several days as the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. McCartney, of Meyers avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Bittner, Akron, O., are spending their vacation with the former's mother, Mrs. Nora Bittner.

Cherry Crop Off

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 29. (AP)—Commercial cherry growers in this belt viewed bleakly today a fifteen-per cent normal crop and a sharp drop in the market price.

Observers believed that unusual heavy production in other areas accounted for the poor price.

Growers were advised by their principal outlet—a canning plant—that the price probably would be about two and one-half cents a pound, compared with five cents two years ago.

Midland, Barton Fire Companies Win in Contest

Midland Takes First Place in Hook-Up-Contest; Barton Is Second

Westernport, June 29.—The Midland Fire company won first place and the Barton Fire company second place in the hook-up contest, which was held here yesterday afternoon in connection with the two-day convention of the Allegany and Garrett Counties Volunteer Firemen's association. The Midland company received a cash prize of $20 and the Barton company $10.

In the first run and hook-up, Midland was the only company to fulfill all the requirements and was declared the winner. A second run of the other contestants was made and Barton made the best time to take second prize. Other companies participating were Lonaconing, Mt. Savage and Frostburg.

The requirements for the race were a 100-yard run by the fire truck, the unloading and hook-up of two lengths of regular fire hose to the truck pumper and the unloading and hook-up of one length of suction hose from the hydrant to the pumper. Midland's time in the first race was fifty-three seconds. Barton bettered this in the second run with an elapsed time of thirty-two seconds.

Winners of the various prizes among association members were:

Largest company in line with a band, Lonaconing, with thirty-nine men, the $25 prize; company with the most men in line, Frostburg, with fifty-eight men, $20 prize; company coming the longest distance with twenty or more men, Oakland, prize $20; best drill company in line with twenty or more men, Barton, $20 prize; company making the best appearance with sixteen or more men in line, Grantsville, $15 prize.

Loving cups were awarded to the following non-members:

Company making the best appearance, Moorefield; company coming the longest distance, Parsons; best appearing drum corps, American Legion; and the best band, Lonaconing city band.

Following a large parade last night the prizes were awarded in front of the reviewing stand on Main street, Westernport. The judges were Mayor Donald Mellor, Glenn Boyd and John F. Rose.

The firemen's convention will be held next year at Friendsville.

Wilbur Dye Succumbs

Wilbur W. Dye, son of T. C. Dye, Piedmont, died last night at Rockford, O., from a fractured skull and other injuries received five weeks ago when he fell down a flight of stairs in a business building in Rockford.

Mr. and Mrs. Dye will go to Rockford to attend the funeral. His brother, Robert Dye, Piedmont, who is visiting in Indiana, also will attend.

Leagues Will Merge

At a meeting Monday night of the officers of the Epworth leagues of the First Methodist church and St. John's Methodist church, plans were made for a unification of the two organizations.

A nominating committee, composed of the Rev. Raymond L. Moore, the Rev. Fred R. Barnes, Mrs. Joseph Samuels and Mrs. John E. Grindle, was appointed. The committee will present a ticket at a joint meeting to be held Sunday evening at 6:30 o'clock, at the First church and officers will be elected. All members of both leagues are eligible to vote in the election and are requested to be present Sunday evening.

Tri-Town Briefs

Mr. and Mrs. Courtland Smith, Potomac, Pa., will arrive Friday to spend several days with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith, of Westernport.

Miss Lucella Villano, Piedmont, is a patient at Potomac Valley hospital, Keyser, for observation.

Mr. and Mrs. Randall Lininger and daughter, Richmond, Va., will arrive this week-end to spend several days with Mr. Lininger's mother, Mrs. Floyd Lininger, of Westernport.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Arnold, Piedmont, will leave tomorrow for San Francisco, where they will attend the convention of the American Bar association.

Miss May Rose and John Rose, Piedmont, editors of the Piedmont Herald, left today for Marlinton to attend the annual outing of the West Virginia Newspaper council.

Motorists in Last Minute Rush for 1939-40 License Tags

Charleston, W. Va., June 29. (AP)—The road commissioners and the public service commission, having done a rush business all this week, got set tonight for the busiest day of all tomorrow—the last day that 1938 automobile licenses may be used.

More than 160,000 new license plates were issued at the close of business today, C. J. Powell, registrar of motor vehicles, reported. He expects three more heavy days and a total of about 200,000 plates issued at the close of business Monday.

Regular office hours are being observed at the bureau but those in line at closing time are not turned away. Powell said the average waiting line of about 100 persons is moved in about thirty minutes.

At the public service commission offices where truck owners and other common carrier operators are certified under the new state motor vehicle act, approximately 7,000 applications have been handled.

Chief Clerk A. C. Eckstein said approximately 11,000 were expected to have been certified by July 4 and said between 2,000 and 3,000 more probably would be received during the month. The new law removes the old exemption of trucks with less than two tons capacity.

Mayor of War Is Placed on Trial

Woman Claims He Forced Her To Return to House of Prostitution

Bluefield, W. Va., June 29. (AP)—Twenty-seven-year-old Mollie Cole told a federal court jury today that Dr. Charles S. Brown "forced" her to return from Virginia to a house of prostitution at War where he is mayor.

She was the first witness called by the government, which indicted Brown on a Mann Act charge.

Harley Sanders, defense counsel, contended in opening arguments that the charge against his client was a "frame up;" that Brown was seen about the house while exercising his official duties in a drive to "clean up" the community.

The real reason for his presence at the house, countered Assistant U. S. District Attorney John Hereford, was because he was the "silent partner."

The house was run by Sam Stanley, who now is serving a five-year term for a Mann act conviction. Stanley's arrest, the defense claimed, was brought about by Brown, who after conferring with Prosecutor Samuel Christie of McDowell county, dropped a state charge which carried a $50 fine on the prospect of making a more severe federal charge stick.

Buxom Miss Cole testified she gained employment in 1938 at the house without realizing what was expected of her, but soon learned from the defendant.

She told of intimate relations with Dr. Brown, and asserted that after a stay of nine months ran away to the home of Stanley's father in Coburn, Va.

Three days later, Miss Cole said, Brown appeared and "forced" her to return.

Pollution Kills 50,000 Fish

Charleston, W. Va., June 29. (AP)—Conservation officials said today possibly 50,000 fish had died in the polluted Guyandotte river and that the poison was creeping downstream.

After an investigation by commission representatives, the executive secretary, G. H. Overholt, asserted the pollution was dumped in an attempt to reopen the old Thermo mine No. 8 near Pineville.

Overholt said warrants charging the Gascon Coal Company of Alpoa with violation of the state pollution law would be sworn out at once.

Wolfe Is Reelected

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 29. (AP)—The West Virginia Travelers Protective Association reelected William F. Wolfe of Martinsburg president at an annual meeting.

J. Gordon Baldwin was named vice president and James G. Bowers reelected secretary-treasurer.

of the Keyser garden club, will be the speaker at the regular meeting of the Tri-Towns Garden club Thursday evening, July 6, at 7:30 o'clock, at St. James parish house, Westernport.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Parks and Son Escape Injury

Parsons, June 29.—The Rev. J. Herbert Parks, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church here, accompanied by his wife and small son, John, narrowly escaped serious injury yesterday on the highway near Clarksburg when their car is said to have got out of control on a bumpy road and struck a culvert. The side of the car was badly damaged and the windshield was broken out by the force of Mrs. Parks head striking it. None of the occupants were injured to any great extent. The car was hauled here for repairs.

Child Drinks Gasoline

Coleene Susan Vachon, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Vachon, Hambleton, is recovering at her home today from the effects of swallowing a small quantity of gasoline yesterday. She was treated in the Tucker County Hospital and then permitted to return to her home.

Mrs. F. K. Lyons entertained with a bridge party at her home yesterday for Mrs. Clarence Adams, wife of Lieutenant Lyons at the Parsons CCC camp. Those who attended were Mrs. Colene Hinkle, Mrs. Frances Kepner, Mrs. Kenton Lambert, Mrs. A. Pickard, Miss Lalah Scott, Mrs. B. F. Harris, Mrs. Esther Scott, Miss Virginia Wise, Mrs. E. C. Boyles and Mrs. Charlotte Phillips.

Brief Mention

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clair, this city, announced the birth of a son at the Tucker County Hospital. The mother is the former Madeline Digman. Mr. Clair is a member of the Parsons Volunteer Fire Department.

The Parsons fire department band is being kept busy these days. Last night they took part in the parade at Westernport and won one of the prizes, tomorrow night they go to Davis, Saturday they go to the Rhododendron festival at Webster Springs and July 4 they will go to Oakland and Terra Alta.

Chester Bennet and Roleau Wilson left today for a few days fishing trip near Circleville.

Mrs. James Shanklin, Roncoverte, is a guest of her mother, Mrs. Nancy Stevens.

Mrs. Cassa Butcher, Bayard, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Alva Nestor at Bretz.

Mrs. Edith Arbogast has returned from a few days visit with relatives in Clarksburg.

Torn Photograph Leads to the Arrest Of Pete Habitt

Wellsburg, W. Va., June 29. (AP)—Police followed the trail of a torn photograph found at the scene of a gasoline theft to arrest a 27-year-old wholesale company employee, Police Chief Paul Arthur reported.

Arthur said Pete Habitt, whose picture was found, admitted taking merchandise valued at approximately $90 each month from wholesaler John Rangos over a period of eighteen months. The chief said James Satrone, Follansbee storekeeper, was charged with receiving stolen goods and Habitt with theft.

Fifteen "Huskies" See Who Can Load Car of Coal First

Webster Springs, W. Va., June 29.—The "Champeen" mine Central West Virginia lumbered their shovels to settle just which one can load a car of coal the quickest.

About fifteen huskies will start tomorrow on a form built to stimulate racing conditions.

The contest is one of the coronation features of the annual Rhododendron festival.

An afternoon rain damped opening day's calendar but the 3,000 visitors who attended this once noted resort came treated to one of the most full of mountain sights.

The Rhododendron—the official flower—is in full bloom in years old residents.

Amid the vivid coloring, Margaret Louise Brabban of Charleston will receive her scepter tomorrow as Rhodora. Governor Holt will also be present.

A parade of 3,000 school children will precede the coronation later a pageant will be presented.

On Saturday, the first of the state "coon dog trials" and state checked tournament started. Asa Long of Toledo's champion checker will compete.

The rain brought postponement of the Upper Elk first aid officials said it would be staged for the three-day festival.

A wrestling show climaxed first day's program.

RESOLUTIONS:

RESOLUTIONS: of Councilmen of Frostburg upon the death of Mayor Horace G. Evans which occurred June 24, 1939;

WHEREAS, it has pleased Almighty God to call from our midst an outstanding citizen and one of our native born Sons who has spent his entire life from birth to death amongst us, and has contributed much to make this city a happier place by reason of his residence;

AND WHEREAS, Horace G. Evans by reason of his kindly sympathies, generous heart and unflagging interest in all public affairs and particularly in the interest of the City of Frostburg and its people has won an enviable place in the affections of our citizens and has endeared himself to all who have known him, by reason of which qualities he has been thrice elected to the office of Mayor of this City;

on and Salem Congregations To Have Joint Service

Cooper Services Will Be Held by Frostburg
Church

Frostburg, June 29—Zion Evangelical and Reformed church members worship with the Salem Reformed church, congregation, at 80 Highway, Frostburg, on this Sunday morning. On the following Sunday the order will be reversed, and the Salem members will worship with the Zion's congregation at their church on East Union Street.

The young people of the Zion's church usually directed by Victor Phillips, will sing, Sunday morning, with the Young People's Choir of Salem, under the direction of Miss Margaret Stippel.

During the months of July and August there will be no regular evening services at Salem. Sunday evening (July 2) if the weather is favorable, a caravan of all who wish to go to a vesper service, will start from Salem, at 7:30. The caravan will go to an unannounced point, where there will be a short surprise program, as well as a meditation by the pastor. Anyone wishing to attend, but not having means of transportation, speak to the pastor ahead of time, and transportation arrangements will be made.

rs. Johnson Dies

Abraham Park, 26 Grant street, received word Monday of the death of her sister, Mrs. John W. Johnson, Harrisburg, Ill. Mrs. Johnson was the former Margaret Johnson who resided at Borden Street many years before going to Illinois.

Besides her sister, she leaves a brother, William Taylor, and the following children, Joseph, William, Mary and Ruth, all at home.

rs. Duncan Succumbs

Frostburg friends of the Rev. and Mrs. H. H. Beideman, Hanover, Pa., learned word of the death, Wednesday, of Mrs. Beideman's mother, A. Charles Duncan, at the parsonage of St. Matthew's Lutheran church, Hanover. She was the widow of the late Charles Duncan, former postmaster of Gettysburg, Pa., and for many years a prominent Democratic political leader in Adams county, Pa.

Besides Mrs. Beideman, she leaves a son, William Duncan, a prominent newspaper man of Philadelphia who frequently appeared as a speaker at the Cumberland service clubs, and Edward Beideman, sons who were at the "Y" camp on the South Branch, were taken to Hanover on account of Mrs. Duncan's death.

Frostburg Briefs

The Frostburg Rotary Club will hold its usual weekly meeting Monday, July 3. Commencing Monday, July 10, the club will hold its summer luncheons at the Big Savage Inn on top of Big Savage Mountain. The main buildings of the Big Savage Inn on Route 40 were improved this week with the placing of additional windows. H. Clay Newman, proprietor, is also planning to have the large east porch enclosed with a screen, making it available for outdoor luncheons.

RURAL CLERIC NO. 1

The Rev. George B. Gilbert, 65, of Durham, Conn., pictured cutting the hair of a young parishioner, was named No. 1 rural clergyman in a nationwide poll. Rector of four country parishes, he also conducts a glee club, barbers, repairs automobiles and runs a paying farm. Single-handed, he built a wading pool for neighborhood children.

Part of Remains Of Columbus May Be Bought by U.S.

Washington, June 29 (AP)—A bit of bone and a pinch of dust—said to be part of the remains of Christopher Columbus—were brought to Washington yesterday by the sister of a woman who has offered to sell them to the government for $50,000.

The tiny portions of bone were encased in a globular locket of crystal. A crystal crucifix held in its center the pinch of dust, taken from a tomb in Santo Domingo.

The relics are owned by Mrs. Laura Butler Treadwell, formerly of Shepherdstown, W. Va., now of Los Angeles. They were carried here in a heavy strongbox by the sister, Mrs. Helen Mitchell, of Shepherdstown.

Authenticity of the bone and dust was questioned by Representative Treadway (R-Mass.) during a library committee hearing on a bill to authorize their purchase.

"I'm not especially doubtful," he said, "but we should have definite proof."

Mrs. Mitchell and her representative LeRoy Romanoff, of Los Angeles, scoffed.

"It would be preposterous," they said, "to think that John Boyd Thacher, who devoted most of his life to a study of the life of Christopher Columbus, could have been mistaken." Mrs. Treadwell inherited the remains from Thacher.

Representative Randolph (D-W. Va.), author of the bill to buy the relics, also insisted there was no doubt of authenticity. He added that the library of Congress had a collection donated by Thacher, former Mayor of Albany, N. Y.

"That collection," he said, "has a value of more than half a million dollars, proving his collected articles are authentic."

ed from the Miners' Hospital Thursday where he underwent an operation.

Mrs. Margaret Walsh, Misses Irene Winner, Datha Thomas, Irene Condry, Angela Brady and Isadora Casey, county school teachers, have gone to New York to take a summer course at Columbia University.

Miss Elizabeth Wright, R. N., has returned to Woman's Hospital, Baltimore, after spending several weeks here with relatives.

John Dilley, U. S. S. Vincennes, returned to his ship at Baltimore after visiting with his parents, this city.

Mrs. Verus Workman and son, Ray, are in Pittsburgh, visiting with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Graham returned to Philadelphia after visiting with Mr. and Mrs. John Miller, Broadway, parents of Mrs. Graham.

The Rev. and Mrs. I. F. Kracke of the Zion Evangelical and Reformed parsonage, East Main street, are spending their vacation in Baltimore and other eastern cities.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Durst announce the birth of a daughter June 19 at their home 91 West Main street. The baby has been named Carole Louise.

New Creek Goes On a Rampage In Keyser Section

Laurel Dale Causes
Stream To Overflow

Keyser, W. Va., June 29 — New Creek, usually a small and quiet mountain stream that flows through Keyser, went on a rampage, this afternoon rising faster than ever before in the history of the town. Unofficial observers said today water in the creek's channel rose nine inches in twenty minutes. The stream did not overflow its banks within the Keyser city limits.

A cloudburst above Laurel Dale, approximately ten miles upstream along New Creek from Keyser, was blamed for today's high waters. In Keyser, the crest of the muddy water, about 3:30 this afternoon, was just level with the banks. Upstream, along New Creek Drive, water broke from the channel in several places.

Residents at Laurel Dale said the downpour started at about 12:30 this afternoon and lasted an hour. Bottomlands between Laurel Dale and Keyser were inundated, and barns and outbuildings all along New Creek Drive were flooded. No residences were reported invaded by the onrushing waters.

Trees at least thirty feet tall were uprooted and carried downstream by the rushing waters of the usually quiet creek. Large stumps, cornstalks, fodder and pieces of farming equipment were observed floating by here this afternoon.

A Keyser newspaper reported that the junction of State routes 220 and 50 was flooded about 2:30 p. m., but by 4 o'clock the waters were receding. Resident-observers along the Potomac river here said today's rise in that stream was "negligible."

Yesterday evening about six o'clock something of a sensation was caused among Keyser citizens living close to New Creek when the stream rose six inches within fifteen minutes, but the waters receded in something over half an hour then. The unofficial "flood stage" was reached, but the crest of the water was more than six feet below the lowest bank when it at its highest.

Today's top water began dropping just about four o'clock this afternoon.

Old-time residents along New Creek within Keyser limits were reminded of a similar flood-score almost thirty years ago. July 24, 1912, a cloudburst in the vicinity of Laurel Dale caused New Creek waters to break from their banks, washing away most of the homes along the stream.

New Creek residents expressed relief this evening that the Potomac river, into which the creek empties at the north end of Water street, had not risen to any appreciable extent.

Highwater in the river acts as a dam at the creek-mouth, backing up water in the smaller stream and causing it to leave its banks.

John Parrell Hurt

Yesterday afternoon John Parrell, twenty-four-year-old ice company employe here, slipped on a wet pavement and fell through a plate glass window in the Court Square Cafe, on Armstrong street.

Thirteen stitches were required to repair the damage to Parrell's arm, pierced by the glass.

School Board Meets

Mineral county Board of Education officials today reversed themselves when they called a special meeting of the old board for tonight.

The night of June fifth was the time of the last regular meeting of the educational administrative body. Spokesmen for the group said then there would not be another meeting of the board until July third, when W. E. Coffman, Keyser and Dr. P. R. Wilson, Piedmont, retiring members, would be succeeded by I. M. Lyons, Blaine, and George Boyd, Piedmont, respectively.

Purpose of tonight's meeting is discussion of plans for leveling of the ground behind the new auditorium-gymnasium addition to the Keyser Junior high school building. Land levelled off behind the rear of the new addition and the lower part of Fort avenue will be used this summer as a speedball court and playground for Keyser children, if it is decided at tonight's session to use the ground for that purpose.

Operations will be in charge of Frank A. Hersch, architect in charge of work on the building addition.

Pardon Board Is Kept Quite Busy At Harrisburg

Moves to Air-Conditioned
Chamber from Stuffy
Court Room

Harrisburg, Pa., June 30 (AP)—Hot June days meant little to the board of pardons, the lawyers and spectators who sat in for a three-day session this week—the board shifted from the stuffy supreme court room to the air-conditioned senate chamber.

Hearing 200 pleas for lesser prison terms and six appeals from men condemned to die in the electric chair is a long and tedious task.

The Senate, like the big hall of the House of Representatives, stands out as an oasis to perspiring victims of the current heat wave.

Takes Hold Quickly

William S. Livengood, Jr., new secretary of internal affairs, moved into the pardon board chair formerly occupied by a veteran whose withering comments to lawyers pepped up the proceedings of many an occasion. That was Thomas A. Logue, himself a prominent attorney, who well knew the arguments his professional colleagues resorted to in an effort to gain mercy for a client.

Livengood was quick to take hold, however. He threw one attorney into confusion after the lawyer said his client took a gun into a store just "to scare" the clerk into giving up the cash register's contents.

"Why did he load the gun?" asked Livengood quietly.

The lawyer could not answer that one.

Proposed Holidays Out

Nearly every session of the legislature brings forth another legal holiday or special observance. The recent assembly followed suit, but failed to convince the governor more off days are needed.

The 1939 session proposed an August holiday in honor of Susan B. Anthony, exponent of woman's suffrage, but Governor James vetoed the measure which would have set aside an additional bank holiday.

James likewise turned down a bill to make every Saturday during the summer a bank holiday at the discretion of directors.

The governor gave his reason that bankers couldn't get together on the Saturday closing.

Three Approved

The 1937 session managed to make Flag Day a legal holiday on June 14, and also set aside two other legal observances for 1937 and 1938.

The extra days were in honor of Pennsylvania's ratification of the federal constitution, September 17, 1937, and the landing of the first Swedish settlers near Philadelphia, April 8, 1938.

Museum Draws Many

Seth Gordon, executive director of the game commission, notes a growing interest in the wildlife museum at the Pymatuning waterfowl refuge in Crawford county.

He said reports showed 2,500 persons visited the exhibits in a week. One of the reasons may be that from the museum's terrace it is possible to see huge flocks of ducks in the nearby refuge area.

In the upper spillway of the dam schools of carp are fed bread by hundreds of visitors.

Gordon figures that eighty-five species of waterfowl visit the area, thirty of which have been seen nesting there. The bald eagle seems to like the section, too.

The reservoir, with 17,000 acres of water, is the largest water area in the state.

Robert Price Is Given Life Sentence

Beckley, W. Va., June 29 (AP)—Judge Harley M. Kilgore decreed life imprisonment for Robert Price, 24, who pleaded guilty to his third felony—theft of a pair of shoes and $5.

Price previously served terms for robbing a postoffice and a store in Kentucky. He was charged on the third district with robbery of a Clear Fork district store.

Under the habitual criminal act, the life sentence was mandatory.

Driver Kills Neighbor Crossing Road near Home

Impact Hurls Elderly Victim Over 100 Feet
Tragedy Occurs In Narrows Park Near Shapiro's

A 58-year-old Narrows Park man was instantly killed last night when the sedan driven by a neighbor hurled him 100 feet.

Henry Garfield Roberts was struck down in Narrows Park by the car driven by Charles M. Engle, 33, of Narrows Park. Roberts was crossing the National Highway from the Texaco gas station to Shapiro's grocery when the accident occurred.

Engle, who was held by authorities last night, declared that his car was doing between fifteen and twenty miles an hour when the accident occurred. The radiator of the car was stove in, the lens of the right headlight was shattered, and a dent was found on the car hood.

Officers Investigate

The driver told State Troopers George J. Miller and A. H. Bickle that he had driven in from Frostburg. Later, he was questioned by County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle.

Chewing gum vigorously, Engle declared, "You know how it happens: it happens so quick. It was dim there. I was doing between fifteen and twenty miles an hour." Engle said he felt the car hit something and knew it was a man. He said he drove down the highway a little further and then came back.

Had Passengers

George Cunningham, 24, of Park street, who was in the car with Engle, disappeared following the accident.

"I told him to go home," Engle explained. Roberts was dead when spectators at the store and gas station reached him.

He was brought to Allegany Hospital by Eston Meager, John Bolden, William Roberts, and Taylor Athey, all of Frostburg, and Boyd Hunter, of Wright's Crossing.

Engle Held

Investigator Boyle stated last night that he would hold Engle over night while he and State police completed their investigation.

Roberts made his home with his sister, Mrs. Elizabeth McKenzie, who operates a grocery store at the corner of the Mt. Savage Road and Route 40.

He was a familiar figure in Narrows Park and spent most of his time working in his garden and "sitting around" at Shapiro's grocery and the gas station.

Crossed Road

He had been talking with friends at the service station last night when he suddenly decided to walk across the highway to see who was at the grocery store.

Mr. Boyle's investigation revealed that the Engle car had a clear path coming east on Route 40. There was no car between the sedan and the grocery store and gas station, he said.

Asked if his headlights were on, Engle replied, "yes." After an examination by Dr. Linne H. Corson, medical examiner, the body of the victim was removed from the hospital to the Hafer funeral home.

Many Register For 'Y' Camp
Overflow Number Of Boys Expected

The advance work at the "Y" Camp on the South Branch has been completed and all is in readiness for the start of the Boys' session July 2.

Several of the boys who were unable to wait showed up several days in advance of the opening day and, while no program was in operation, the advance party put them to work at odd jobs.

Indications point to an overflow Boys' camp as registrations are way ahead of previous years.

Several groups have been entertained at Camp during the process of construction including the DeMolay Alumni and the local DeMolay order. The Alumni spent a day, while the member of the order spent the best part of two days, both groups reporting a grand time.

Fireworks Shooters Fined $1 Apiece

Three merry noisemakers luckily escaped jail sentences yesterday in Police court when arraigned before Magistrate Frank A. Perdue for shooting fireworks before July 4.

They are Edwin A. Woods, of Long, Md.; Earl Steward, 214 Hay street, and Herman Sathoff, 220 Hay street. All were given suspended fines of $1 each.

Officer James J. Condon arrested the men Wednesday night at Baltimore and Mechanic streets, and they spent the night in jail when unable to make $10 bond apiece.

Post Office To Close

The post office will observe the regular holiday schedule July 4. There will be no deliveries by city or rural carriers and no window service. Letter and paper mails will be distributed to boxes and dispatched as usual.

Passerby Saves Child Who Crawled Into Sewer Death Trap Near Home

Chubby, two-year-old Dickie Alderton was alive today because an alert passerby happened to hear him splashing about in the rain-swollen sewer in which he was trapped.

Charles Leith, 19, of 520 Maryland avenue, a clerk at the A&P Super-Market, rescued the child.

"I heard something splashing about, and then I noticed a scooter lying in the street," said Leith. "I raised up the manhole cover, and there was the kid lying face down in the muddy water, unable to get up."

"He wasn't making any sort of cry, and there was no one else in sight. It's lucky I happened by and heard him."

Dickie, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Alderton, 512 Woodside avenue, had crawled into the sewer through a long, unprotected slot supposed to carry off surface water.

Apparently he had gone after a ball, as the children in the neighborhood of Maryland avenue and Broadway often do, his mother said. "But I didn't know there was anything so dangerous as that around," his mother said.

Mrs. Alderton kept Dickie tied to the end of a long rope yesterday, to make sure he did not slip off again.

Dickie was wet and muddy and cut about the mouth when they brought him home after his narrow escape Wednesday, but examination at Memorial hospital showed that he had not been injured.

Dickie played about none the worse for his adventure yesterday. Dickie's father is a truck driver for the J. C. Orrick Company.

Gaul To Direct Mountain Choir
Authorities To Lecture Summer School Plan

Dr. Harvey Gaul, Pittsburgh composer, choirmaster and movie critic, will direct the Festival Choir this season at Mountain Lake Park.

Dr. Gaul, who has been associated with the Mountain Choir Festival Association from its beginning, will also lecture on adult choir in connection with the Convocation on Worship and Church Music.

This convocation is scheduled from Wednesday, July 5, to Saturday, July 8. Other outstanding authorities who will lecture are Beckett Gibbs, Juillard School, New York City; Dr. Paul Douglas, editor of Christianity; Chicago; and Deanne Edwards, New York City.

The Festival opens this season with a Peace Jubilee on McComas Beach, Deep Creek Lake, Sunday 8 p. m. Rabbi Morris Lazarov, Baltimore, will deliver the peace oration; Rev. William F. Sauer, pastor of St. Peter's Catholic Church, Oakland, will offer the prayer. Choir units from the Allegheny Tableland, Johnstown and the Potomac Valley, will sing.

Friday, July 7, 7:30 p. m., the Department of Music, West Virginia University, will give a concert. The artists appearing will be Frank Cuthbert, bass-baritone; Kenneth Wood, violinist, and Volney Shepard, pianist.

Saturday, 7:30 p. m., the Washington Irving High School, Clarksburg, W. Va., a Capella Choir and Orchestra under Prof. Clarence C. Arms, will be featured.

Sunday, July 9, choirs from 25 communities will be present to sing separately and also as a great Festival unit.

Dr. Nat T. Frame, Martinsburg, former West Virginia Extension Director, and former director of Oglebay Park, Wheeling, will speak. There will be other features. Popular prices will prevail for all events.

Births

Mr. and Mrs. Howard J. Bush, 101 Humbird street, announce the birth of a son yesterday morning at Allegany hospital.

Rabbit Costs More Than Caviar

A rabbit dinner back-fired on the hunter yesterday when he was hauled into court.

John Lancaster, of Cresap town, was fined $25 and costs in Trial Magistrate's court for killing a rabbit out of season.

Charges against Lancaster, who pleaded guilty, were made by Deputy Game Warden Harry R. Kenney. He testified he arrested Lancaster after he investigated reports of a rabbit dinner.

Police Arrest Eugene Nixon
Failure To Appear As Witness Charged

Failure to appear when summoned as a witness resulted in the arrest of Eugene P. Nixon, of 528 Virginia avenue, last night.

Nixon was taken into custody on a warrant sworn out by Officers Carl Stouffer and John Whalley before Magistrate Frank A. Perdue yesterday in Trial Magistrate's court. He was released on $10 bond.

Nixon was supposed to have appeared last week in Police court to testify in the cases of Hollis W. and Charles W. True, both of 409 Independence street. They were each fined $10 for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. Officers Stouffer and Whalley arrested both men.

Nixon is scheduled to be given a hearing this morning in Police court.

on High Roads Low Roads and By-Ways

We have found the weather most unpleasant during the past several days, chiefly because it has been so muggy. Maybe, however, the weather man is just getting it out of his system to give us a fair weekend and a glorious Fourth.

It seems that the Fourth is the one holiday surest to end up in a series of thunder storms, just as the picnic lunch is being spread, or, what is worse, in an all-day rain.

The South Branch usually picks this holiday to come down muggy as a claybank, saving any number of hungry bass, but driving the fishermen nuts.

Not being a fisherman, we were always glad to see a muddy river over the Fourth, but that admittedly is a highly selfish viewpoint.

Maybe such blasphemous thoughts explain why we never were able to catch anything but under-nourished sunfish and catfish who insisted on swallowing the hook.

An old, old fisherman once told us the reason we couldn't catch fish was because we swore too much. We denied swearing.

"Oh, yes, you do," he said. "Maybe you're swearing under your breath and don't realize it. A man has to be at peace with the world to catch fish."

Personally, we don't want to be at peace with the world, unless it is on a Sunday morning when we don't have to get up and the rain is dancing on the roof.

It is a pleasure to report that the young bridegroom-to-be, whose adventures have helped us to fill up this column on dull evenings, got off yesterday for the Capital City and the scene of his wedding.

That is, we hope he went in the right direction, for he was a pretty much of a daze. Which is as it should be. A bride is supposed to be very excited, very happy, and very beautiful as the fatal hour approaches. That is expected of brides, and no matter who she is, she generally manages to look happier and prettier than ever before in her life.

But as for the bridegroom, he is expected to appear in a daze—and always does.

If a bride were to vent the altar without a rare flush of happiness and beauty on her face, folks would be mighty disappointed. And if a bridegroom ever appeared without looking fussed, fidgety, and scared to death, the assembled wedding guests would feel like rising up in the church and demanding their wedding presents back. They just wouldn't be getting their money's worth.

A best man, unless he is an old bachelor and an old hand at leading hapless young men to the slaughter, is usually in as bad shape as the bridegroom. And best men are supposed to be cool and collected.

We were a best man once, and felt in our pocket so many times to make sure the ring wasn't lost, that we almost wore that gold ring in two.

We have talked to a lot of bridegrooms to find out what there is to make a man so nervous at his own wedding. He doesn't have any speeches to make, no responsibilities, and might as well realize that no one is even looking at him, all eyes being on the bride. But still the poor fellow suffers. No one has been able to explain why.
